Democrats criticize President's actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats who control Congress are sharply criticizing President Ford's latest actions to force up petroleum prices but cannot guarantee the votes to substitute their own energy program.

One, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called today for an immediate attempt upon Congress' return from its Memorial Day recess to override Ford's veto of a bill blocking his oil import tariffs. Jackson made the call in a letter to the Senate majority leader.

A Republican, Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, said if the veto is overridden Congress should establish a joint Senate-House task force to fashion a comprehensive energy program within 60 days. Javits disapproved of Ford's tariffs, but said he understood the President's concern with lack of congressional action.

As a result of the President's action, announced in a national broadcast Tuesday night, the price of gasoline is expected to increase by at least 1.5 cents a gallon in early summer. And if Ford has his way, the price would climb another six cents or more over the next 18 to 24 months.

The President chided Congress for failing to approve a broad energy program, as he recommended in his State of the Union message last January. Therefore, Ford said he will:

—Impose a second $1-per-barrel tariff on imported oil, effective June 1. Although the tariff is aimed at reducing consumption of foreign oil, the extra dollar, like the previous $1 tariff, also is likely to be added by oil companies to the price of the 40 per cent of domestic oil production that is exempt from price controls. This could mean an extra $255 million a month in oil company profits reflecting both dollar increments. Ford also has proposed a windfall profits tax on oil producers.

—Levy a 60-cent-per-barrel tariff on imported petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil, also effective on June 1. The effects of this increase will be felt most in Hawaii and on the East Coast which are heavily dependent on oil refined abroad.

—Send to Congress next month a plan for removing federal controls from domestic oil

Death bill debate expected today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill calling for use of the death penalty for all persons convicted of premeditated murder was expected to again be debated in the Missouri Senate today.

The meausre, which originated in the House, was first taken up late Tuesday but set aside for later consideration after about 90 minutes of debate.

It calls for the ultimate punishment for those convicted of "capital murder," and says, "A person is guilty of capital murder if he unlawfully, willfully, knowingly, deliberately and with premeditation, kills or causes the killing of another human being."

As originally approved in the House, the bill would have called for the gas chamber for those convicted of 12 types of murder. But the measure was amended in a Senate committee to conform with a death penalty bill approved earlier this year in the upper chamber.

During the initial debate Tuesday, Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, opposed the bill, saying it amounted to "shooting craps with a person's life."

"This bill's never going to go to Washington," Schechter said, referring to the possibility of its constittionality being questioned before the U.S. Supreme Court. "It will just go across the street where it will wind up in the trash can," he said, referring to the state Supreme Court building.

Sen. Ike Skelton, the Lexington Democrat sponsoring the bill, said it would give juries the power to find a defendant guilty of lesser facts and convict him of first-degree murder or manslaughter rather than capital murder.

"It's a matter of fact finding on the part of a jury," Skelton said.

But capital punishment opponent Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis said the bill amounted to "giving them (jurors) a choice. They can believe almost anything from the facts."

"But they're not choosing punishment," Skelton argued. "They're choosing between types of crime."

Scott health department to check public pools

BENTON--The Scott County Health Department will begin checking public swimming pools in the county as soon as they open, administrator Warren Manning said Tuesday.

"A swimming pool operation is pretty involved," Manning said, "and those that operate the pools don't realize how many thousands of dollars are being handled by people not necessarily trained for the job."

He said a seminar was held recently in Poplar Bluff for pool operators, but that only two persons from Scott County attended. A similar workshop may be held in Scott County for those who missed the one at Poplar Bluff.

The health department will initially survey the pools, checking for such items as filters and safety features. From then on, weekly water samples will be taken from each pool and water quality tests made.

There are three city-owned pools in Scott County, located at Chaffee, Scott City and Sikeston, and there are three motel pools, all in Sikeston.

The inspections will be another addition to regular duties performed by the health department. During April, it was announced that the department would assume the responsibility of checking meat departments of stores in the county in addition to its regular duties.

Manning said the health department is still in the process of checking the meat departments, and added that the grocery stores are cooperating.

The stores found unsatisfactory in the original check were found to be maintaining a higher level when rechecked, but could still stand improvement, he said.

Twenty six restaurants and taverns were also checked in the past month, and five nuisance complaints were investigated and taken care of in a satisfactory manner, Manning said.

During the past month the health department checked all motels in the county for licensing, treated 122 children at a well baby clinic, issued 525 immunizations, conducted 63 blood pressure tests at the Heritage House, sent health department nurses on 113 home visits and conducted 15 speech therapy sessions.

Thirty-eight persons were signed up for the women's, infants and children's (WIC) supplemental food program, funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The WIC program is for persons needing aid to purchase such items as baby formula or baby food.

Oran rejects tax hike

ORAN — Voters in the Oran R-3 School District Tuesday turned down a proposed 40 cents per $100 valuation increase in the tax levy by a vote of 205 for and 230 against, Superintendent. M. V. Smith said today. This is the third defeat of the proposal.

Smith said that for now another election will not be held. Cost-cutting measures will be employed. The money is needed, however, so another election may be held next spring, he said.

The board of education met Tuesday night and, after the returns were in, made the first cost-cutting steps. They will release the director of summer sports, will not allow outside groups other than little league to use school facilities and will charge everybody, including little league, for use of the lights.

"It's going tto be hard to make cuts," Smith said, pointing out that some things can't be cut without closing down the school and losing its recently earned AA rating.

Also at Tuesday night's meeting, the board hired Mary C. Kearney as art instructor for the school system and Sam J. Duckworth Jr. as junior high school math and science teacher.

Thieves hit Bloomfield offices

BLOOMFIELD — The Bloomfield post office and the offices of Drs. Floyd Northington and Robert Jibben and the Board of Probation and Parole office in Dexter were burglarized sometime Tuesday night, according to Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser, who said this morning that an undetermined amount of money was taken from the safe at the post office.

Thieves apparently entered through a rear window of the Probation and Paroid Board office at Dexter, burglarizing both the parole office and the doctors offices which are located adjacent to the parole office.

Mouser said it had not been determined what was taken but thinks the burglars were after drugs. This marked the second time the two doctor's offices have been burglarized in recent weeks.

Malden votes down school bond issue

MALDEN — Residents of Malden R-1 School District rejected a $190,000 bond issue Tuesday when the measure received only 132 favorable votes and was opposed by 135 voters.

Approximately 10 per cent of registered voters in the district cast votes in the special election on the bond issue, which would have increased the school tax levy by 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Approval of the proposal would have resulted in the construction of two recreational buildings for the Smith Street and Beckwith Street elementary schools.

The measure required a two-thirds majority for passage.

Bike and boat stolen

DEXTER — City police are investigating the theft of a girl's bicycle and a 10-foot john boat, which were stolen sometime Tueaday in separate burglaries.

The bicycle was reported stolen at 4:46 p.m. from the Ralph Ogelvie home, 411 E. Stoddard St. The boat was stolen at the Clecy Medlin home on Highway 114 West.

Camera still missing

A purse, billfold and camera were reported missing from a table at Sikeston Junior High School about 10 a.m. Tuesday, according to police.

The items belonged to Marla Robison, 417 Marian St. She later told police she found the purse and billfold but did not recover the camera.

Irrigation equipment stolen

BLODGETT--Sometime between Friday noon and 8 a.m. Tuesday, high pressure irrigation equipment valued at $1,300 was stolen from the Robert Morris farm, a spokesman for the Scott County Sheriff's Department reported today.

Thieves loot man's car

DIEHLSTADT--While George McQuirter of Bertrand Route One was fishing near here, someone broke into his car about 6 p.m.Tuesday and stole a tape player, two speakers and five tapes, a Scott County Sheriff's Department spokesman said today.

Township tax levy approved

BLOOMFIELD---Voters in Stoddard County's Liberty Township approved a measure Tuesday to increase the tax levy by 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Funds from the levy increase will be used for construction and improvement of township roads and bridges over a four-year period.

Fire destroys rural home

DEXTER — Firemen from the Dexter and Essex fire departments battled a blaze early today that destroyed the rural home of Mary Rushing, located near the Circle City community.

Fire Chier Al Banken said the fire broke out in the kitchen area of the home. Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

The Rushings are currently visiting in California.

Missouri Utilities requests are combines for hearing

JEFFERSON CITY — A combined hearing on the applications of Missouri Utilities Company of Cape Girardeau for increases in electric, gas and water rates will be held Sept. 22 by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

The company has requested permanent increases in gross annual revenues of $5,267,227 from electric service in its southeast division, $885,431 from gas service in its central division, $480,664 from gas service in its southeast division, and $185,000 from water service in Cape Girardeau.

Missouri Utilities must file its prepared testimony and exhibits in the electric and water cases by July 3. It has already filed prepared evidence in the gas case. The commission staff, the Public Counsel of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing and intervenors must file their prepared evidence by Sept. 4.

The hearing on Sept. 22 will begin at 10 a.m., in the commission hearing room on the tenth floor of the Jefferson Building, Jefferson City. A prehearing conference will be held in the same location on Sept. 10.

The hearing and filing dates supersede the sschedule issued earlier by the commission.

Local hearings in the company's service area at which customers may testify in regard to the proposed rate increases will be scheduled later by the commission.

Those who qualify as intervenors and wish to participate in any of the cases must file a written application with the commission by June 23.

Persons who wish to testify in the case but do not want to intervene shoud contact Leland B. Curtis, commission counsel, or William M. Barvick, public counsel of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing.

The address and telephone number of the commission counsel are P.O. Box 360, Jefferson Building, Jefferson City 65101 (314)751-2412, and of the public counsel, P.O. Box 386, 911A Leslie Blvd., Jefferson City 65101 (314)751-4857.

The Commission also ordered the company, in response to motion filed by the public counsel, to place a notice of the increases on its June or July customer bills, or by separate enclosure.

2 Ironton men seriously hurt

IRONTON — Two Ironton men were seriously injured Tuesday night in a one-vehicle accident nine miles north of town on Highway 21.

The accident occurred at 8 p.m. when Dennis Mark Clark, 22, lost control of a jeep at high speed on a curve and the vehicle ran off the road, crossed a creek while airborne and struck a tree 10 feet above the ground.

Clark and a passenger, Malcolm John Clark Jr., 21, were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Ironton. Dennis Clark was later transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in St. Louis.

The accident was investigated by the highway patrol, which reported no other accidents involving injuries Tuesday.

WHY WE DON'T NEED FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

The premise that we need and want top-quality education for our children, with or without any prodding from the Russians, is certainly one on which agreement is unanimous. But how to do it? Our educators have perhaps gone a little overboard and taken the stand that it is merely a matter of money; that they have been neglected in favor of other more vocal groups.

If the N.Y. City electrician is worth $6 an hour for twisting a couple of wires together, with extra schooling they should be worth more. Perhaps the electrician is worth this or maybe he is grossly overpaid. The same agrument might be made of a bank robber. He sticks up and gets away with a lot of cash from some bank. Perhaps he gets thousands of dollars for each hour he puts in and maybe even doesn't turn it in on his income tax. So those of us who pursue a peaceful and lawful form of existence should certainly be as well treated as those who violate the law. We all know that the proper thing to do is to correct the errors and not compound them.

You only have to pickup the paper to see in so many cases where the Federal Government has stepped in, not only do costs go up, but the program bogs down. Take our road program. For years here in Missouri we developed good roads at a total tax cost of just a couple cents a gallon of gasoline. A few mistakes were made such as constructing some stretches of three-lane pavement. It is also true we didn't have a lot of fancy cloverleafs and take a small farm to make a normal road crossing.. Now with a total gas tax of five times this amount, costs have gone up to a million dollars a mile, and from what you read the program is in trouble and costs estimates have soared.

Everywhere I go I see new school houses. In most cases they seem to be more costly than the houses of the people who foot the bill. In this connection I would like to call your attention to some of our local school construction. Two schools with tile outer walls have been built in Webster Groves, where I live. A fancy roof and window job is in Ladue and a granite monument of the world is a product of Clayton.

Now, I am sure that no one wishes to intrude on what the people of these communities do with their money or what their tastes are along the artistic. But just stop for a moment and figure what they might have done had "Uncle" been picking up the tab for most of the cost.

You know the old argument of the more bricks we use, the busier both the factory and the mechanic are. And how all this extra money helps the town merchants! But when everybody does it, isn't it just the same thing as any other form of excess spending? Isn't it about time the taxpayer in general gets a break before he goes broke? In Webster Groves there has been quite an increase in amount of delinquent taxes in recent years. Perhaps such type of programming is responsible for this. Also, how is that going to help youngsters get a better education?

The following is offered as a suggestion. It costs you nothing and maybe is worth no more. If we put an excise tax of 5 per per cent on new houses and used this to build new schools, wouldn't this solve the problem and put the cost where it belongs? It's the new subdivision that needs the schools. And this cost is less than streets, sewers, and fancy kitchens now cost. Even less than local real estate men will charge in commission to sell the house.

As to ability to pay teachers, two of these districts spend about $600 per year per pupil, the other about $900. Now take the two lower cost districts with around 30 pupils per teacher: you have a tax intake of $18,000 per teacher (600x30), but the teacher gets only 35 per cent of this. Let's cut the fat out of the schools' overhead.

Before the last war, I helped some boys bone up for service exams and found questions in all former tests in math on the binominal theorem. No boy had heard of it. In checking, I found it was still in the book, but usually the classes "didn't get that far." Checking class progress, I believe that a reward for efficient teachers and new faces for others could cure this. A promotion schedule looking for teachers to progress from teaching - let us say - primary grades through high school and eventually becoming college professors could solve the salary increase problem. If a person never increases his ability, regardless of how many degrees he has, why is he entitled to more money every year? In place of helping the teachers beat inflation, it would help all of us, teachers included, if we took off the kid gloves and went to work cutting government spending and the so-called wage prices spiral.

It might be interesting to compare our local schools with some across the water. A quick check with a school district in South Africa would seem to indicate school principals and teachers get much less than here, so is just raising the "ante" going to get us better education? South Africa and and we have somewhat the same type ancestors, same latitude, etc. Why do they get more for their money than we do? Over there they also apparently have an hour a week religious instruction. Our separation of church and state would not permit that, but would it not pay it to put in the primary grades an hour a week of morals and ethics? And at high school, continue with an hour a week on logic and philosophy? Maybe we could overcome some delinquency problems by teaching what is right and wrong. Teaching students to think and reason could act as a vaccination against following a delusive demagogue or so-called mass movement that can easily develop with some of the things we are not only permitting but even encouraging.

We all know that if there is no money around, all of us are honest. With a 100-billion- dollar one and an added attraction for itching palsm and sticky fingers? So cutting down on governement exxpenses may also improve the morals of our citizens. Think in the hereafter how much nicer it will be to be playing a harp instead of using a shovel. So why get the Federal Government in deeper?

Actually isn't what we need more work for both pupils and teachers? Do you have a 24-hour week and work only nine months a year? Perhaps a four-term school year of 11 weeks each with two weeks' vacation would be practical. When will the teachers get their masters degrees and doctorates? Just like the average businessman: more elbow grease and midnight oil.

A NEAR CRISIS

This nation came close, oh, so close, to another tragic episode in history. We refer to the seizure of the U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez off Cambodia. Not only did the Cambodians take the ship but they took 39 crew men with them.

It seemed almost a game of "touch and go" for several hours as efforts were made to rescue the ship and then to find no one there, only some warm food. But later the 39 Americans were returned and the tension became eased.

This nation, and especially President Gerald Ford, seems to go from one touch problem to another. This is the latest of events. But President Ford has a Secretary of State named Henry Kissinger, who seems to delight in running all over the country for no apparent reason.

The Secretary of State was in St. Louis, then he stopped by Jefferson City to see a Republican Governor, a Republican Attorney General and a Republican Lieutenant Governor. Why was that trip necessary unless for pure, plain politics?

A St. Louis paper showed the above men and their wives coming down the steps of the stately Missouri mansion at Jefferson City. We have no knowledge of why Mr. Kissinger stopped in Jefferson City unless it was to consult with the three wise officials about the world situation.

Then Secretary Kissinger went on to Kansas City and met there with reporters and officials. But he was very mum about the situation over in Cambodia. Apparently from Kansas City he hurried back home to Washington. That is where he should have been in the first place.

There was a time when this newspaper pointed with pride to the man we thought was so highly intelligent. But the more we have seen him stumble and ramble around the less and less we think of him. He does not seem to be the man we thought he was as his deep, guttural voice fails to impress us any longer.

THE COURT CONSIDERS DEATH PENALTY AGAIN

Once again the Supreme Court is considering the death penalty. Is it cruel and unusual, in the meaning of the Eighth Amendment? Does it deter? Is it just? Is it imposed in a discriminatory manner? Not all the questions are new, though the argument must now be conducted within the framework of the Court's 1972 decision, which ruled that the broad discretion with which capital punishment has been applied made the death penalty unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court of North Carolina, where the case currently under consideration arose, ruled that the effect of the 1972 decision was to change North Carolina's discretionary into a mandatory death penalty law. Thers can still be discretion, opponents of the death penalty claim, even where the penalty is mandatory under the law. The prosecution can plea-bargain and bring lesser charges, and the governor can exercise executive clemency. But the Supreme Court didn't object to that in 1972, and it need not be assumed that it will now.

In an age in which man's inhumanity to man shows no decline on the individual or national scene, it seems odd to argue that the death penbalty is cruel or unusual (and it must be both to be proscribed by the Eighth Amendment). That the death penalty deters is inherently plausible and, though difficult to prove, the proposition is supported by a growing body of evidence. In New York State since the repeal of capital punishment, the proportion of murders committed by strangers--i.e., killings that are not crimes of passion by one acquaintance against another--has risen from one-fifth to one half. And even if the deterrent effect were only speculative, it seems more reasonable if error is to be made, to take the life of the guilty man on the chance of sparing the life of an innocent man by deterring his prospective killer, than to risk the innocent life for the sake of preserving the guilty.

But in the end the issue is really one of justice. For some crimes death is the only appropriate penalty that should be meted out by a society that is serious about its own nature and survival.

TURNING 'FINE PRING' INTO BASIC ENGLISH

A long-standing target of consumer advocates has been the "fine print," the legal jargon that only a crew of Philadelphia lawyers can decipher, in insurance policies.

"According to a scientific scale of readability, the standard auto policy is actually more difficult to read and understand than Einstein's theory of relativity," says Herbert S. Denenberg, former Pennsylvania insurance commissioner.

The target is beginning to waver. Not only consumerists but concerned spokesmen for the industry itself are coming to believe that insurance policies can, and must , be written in plain, simple language. A number of companies and a number of state insurance departments have begun taking steps in that direction.

The Pennsylvania insurance department, for example, has promulgated a rule that automobile insurance policies must be "understandable to a person of average intelligence and education. Legal sounding words shoudl be avoided ..."

Florida has proposed minimum, uniform readability standards for health policies, and the Illinois insurance department has asked a governor's advisory board to take up the issue of automobile policy simplification.

At the federal level, "truth in life insurance" legislation is being sponsored in Congress by Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.).

Some industry skeptics contend, however, that simplifying insurance policies is not as simple a matter as it may appear. Many parts of policies are governed by state laws and regulations, they point out. In some cases, the exact language is prescribed. If an insurance company chooses to use different language it could run into conflict with state laws and the courts might declare portions of the policy invalid.

Also, a policy is a legal contract, and over the years a body

Spider Lockhart, New York Giants defensive back, said that the best way to stop the Redskins' Larry Brown was "the same way we stopped Jim Brown. Get him a movie contract."

TAKING STOCK

When he isn't directing the affairs of State Farm Insurance Companies, Edward B. Rust works his own farm outside Bloomington, Ill. In May he became president of the U. S Chamber of Commerce. In his inaugural address in Washington, he made the following observation of the plight of those who till the land in 1973:

"On my farm, I get the practical, firsthand consequences of some of the decisions made in the ivory towers of America. For example, one of the regulations the Environmental Progection Agency has proposed for farmers states that, while livestock can be permitted to drink from streams, they will be forbidden to relieve themselves in streams. Now, I don't have any trouble explaining that regulation to you. But I am having a heck of a time explaining it to the cattle."

UNDERMINING OUR FUTURE

Writing about the end of an era, U.S. News & World Report tells how, after many years as the wealthiest nation, the United States now ranks fifth among major nations in terms of productivity measured by total output per person. The unquestioned dominance of America in technology and productivity has been eroded and is destined to erode further in the future unless strong steps are taken to change the trend.

There are many factors involved in the attrition of U.S. productivity leadership. One factor to which no one seems to have given much thought is the antienergy philosophy that has beseiged the country fro the past several years. Energy production is a recognized barometer of a nation's overall well-being which, of course, includes the per capita productivity of its citizens. This nation has witnessed a deliberate campaign over several years to cripple U.S. energy production. Power plant sites have beeen tied up in endless environmental litigation. Pollution control restrictions that go beyond the bounds of reason have led to critical fuel shortages for the generation of electricity. The enemies of nuclear energy have made a fettish of safety with the result that nuclear generation of powe r has, in many instances, been set back for years. The whole picture has been one of a country deliverately undermining its future by destroying its base of productivity -- energy. The U.S. New piece says that the U.S. is still number one in living standards among the world's great nations. But how long can such a facade of well-being be maintained when the foundation of that well-being is steadily being eaten away by the peculiar defeatist complex that something is sinful about expanding energy production in step with the needs of the American people?

The "power crisis" facing sections of the country, such as the Pacific Northwest, where news headlines tell of aluminum plants being shut down and millions of dollars lost in payrogls,shows the price of a widespread, unhealthy attitude toward the subject of energy. This is an attitude that has already cost the U.S. dearly in wealth and world leadership.

Too Heavy On Gloom: Depressed Auto Union Raising $150 Million Strike Fund

DETROIT--Indeed this is a strange recession. One leaves New York City shortly after a long conversation with former Tarzan movie star Fred O'Neal, now president of the AFL-CIO Associated Actors and Artistes of America, recalling that he said the deeper the recession the longer the lines at the theatrical box offices.

And in the auto town one reads the small print and discovers that the long-suffering United Auto Workers has a swiftly growing strike fund of over $110 million. And that it will be well over $150 million when the union's contract with the Big Three car manufacturers expires just about the time a bicentenially reincarnated George Washington seizes Brooklyn Heights next year.

Since this war chest comes out of members' dues, there must be a great many of them working. Especially since the union secretary treasurer Emil Mazey, last I believe of the depression sit-down auto plant seizers, says the UAW can still afford to donate over a quarter million dollars a year to Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers.

Further, we have the word of UAW's vice president Pat Greathouse that the agricultural implement sector is booming and will continue to prosper. Our farmers, with a bull market at home and abroad, need the big "cats" and tractors. I know from my own intercontinental treks that foreign farmers on both sides of the iron and bamboo curtains pray for them. So employment at International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor and John Deere will stay steady, Greathouse predicted.

It is rough on the 180,000 auto workers who are on indefinite layoffs (best figure around). But much of this is due to the invastion of foreign car manufacturers who have grabbed some 22 per cent of the American market.

In passing, it's fascinating to note that except for the Germans, the foreign car workers are arrogantly anti-American. Especially the Socialists and Communists in the unions at Volvo in Sweden and Fiat in Italy.

This 22 per cent of the American market can't hold up if our producers come up with some imaginative autos. The 22 per cent now is more than the combined sales in the U. S. of Chrysler and American Motors and nearly that of Ford. So it's a matter of selling a smaller car which can get more go for the gallon.

And there's the slight matter of getting the ecologists off the auto makers' backs. But that 22 per cent can--and will--be retaken from the foreign producers. That will put virtually all the dis-employed auto workers back on the lines in a year, according to the specialists here.

Certainly there's joblessness. But very little fear.

If some of the national labor chiefs just wouldn't go so gungho on doom some of the gloom would go. At this moment, even those workers who lost their Supplemental Unemployment Benefits two weeks ago are covered for costs of hospital, medical, prescription drugs, accident and life insurance. Community services organizations of both the UAW and the AFL-CIO are seeing families through all sorts of problems from marital to moratoriums on mortgages and utility bills.

It's rough on the dignity. But it isn't the grim fear of fear against which a former President warned. What it comes to across this nation is whether the cup is 10 per cent empty or 90 per cent full. Actually at least 91.1 per cent of over 92 million people are working. Of these, nearly 10 million now are tied into cost of living increases. To be blunt, not a hell of a lot of the employed appear disturbed by the jobless. Nor is there any inclination to share the work. Or for that matter to use the $110 million strike fund to ease the plight of the 180,000 unemployed auto union brothers and sisters.

Whatever is lacking in fraternity is being made up by the federal government. A high U.S. Treasury Department official reports that more than $153 billion will be disbursed by the government in individual benefit payments during fiscal year 1976. Probably more. Congress hasn't yet adjourned.

This is 44 per cent of the national outlays. Add some $37 billion in federal grants to localities and states. So the taxpayers are doing right well by their unemployed neighbors.

There are 84.1 million persons working. This leaves eight or nine million jobless depending on the day. The orators will say that even one jobless worker is too much. But the orators don't have to meet the federal bills. It may well be that this nation, for a while, will not be able to absorb the current unemployed and the newcomers pouring out of the colleges and schools.

A new WPA, new CCC camps, new work projects may be needed. Nothing wrong with these. At least the jobless will be working for their daily bread, their dignity, while they wait their turn as so many did once upon a grimmer time.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Bipartisan Plea

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Ford made an impassioned appeal to congressional leaders the other day for a return to a bipartisan foreign policy.

He called them into the Roosevelt Room next to his office, closed the doors and told them frankly: "The situation ain't good, fellows."

Then he added earnestly: "We face a harsh reality. The national interest requires closer working together between Congress and the President."

"We ought to stress the need for a whole new era of bipartisanship," echoed Rep. William Broomfield, R.-Mich., the top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Some people want to save money at the expense of defense," noted Rep. Phillip Butrton, D.-Calif., the Democratic caucus chairman. He asked the President, "How do you deal with it?"

"Look at the broad spectrum and it's obvious," said the President, "that this is no time to knock hell out of our insurance policy."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger tried to assess the impact of the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia upon the rest of the world.

"We can never prove the impact on the Mideast. We lost some edge there, I think,;'; he said. "Japan's prime minister is coming over to ask questions."

Then Kissinger, too, became solemn. "This is a setback, and we're going to pay for it," he said. "We can salvage something through a bipartisan undertaking in our future foreign policy conduct."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott turned to the President, who will take over the Mideast negotiations from Kissinger this month. "Can we return to step-by-step negotiations in the Mideast?" asked Scott.

"God knows we tired," was all the President had to say.

WALLACE'S WALLOP: Alabama's Gov. George Wallace could wind up with 35 per cent of the delegates at the 1976 Democratic convention, in the opinion of Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss.

The shrewd Strauss has told close associates that, at worst, Wallace can count on 22 per cent of the delegates. If the crippled Alabaman can keep up the pace, he will go to the convention with over one-third of the delegates, Strauss predicted.

This would mean the Democrats can expect their first multi-ballot convention since 1952 when Adlai Stevension finally beat out Sen. Estes Kefauver, D.-Tenn., for the presidential nomination.

Although Wallace hasn't formally announced his candidacy, he already has amassed a $3 million campaign chest and is preparing a schedule that will take him to 30 states.

The confidential Wallace plans call for skipping the New Hampshire primary. He will make appearances in California, Florida, Indiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina and Wisconsin, among other states.

Footnote: Our sources are wholly reliable, but Strauss would not confirm whether he had used the 35 and 22 per cent figures. "I've specifically refused to make any public comment with respect to the strengths and weaknesses of possible candidates," he said. "I'd like to be known, above all, as a chairman who chaired a totally fair convention."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: President Ford told Republican leaders bluntly the other day that he will fight to remain in the White House next year and that he expects their support. Sources close to the President say he has the full approval of his wife, Betty, who earlier had wanted him to get out of politics ... Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, according to a confidential document, expects North Vietnam to take over the entire country. The document quotes him as saying: "In less than a year, I would expect unification with North Vietnam." ...

Another document quotes Kissinger as saying that the victorius Cambodian Communists maneuvered to keep free of Chinese control. "In Cambodia," he said, "my judgment is that the last month of the war was not so much vs. Phnom Penh as vs. (Prince) Sihanouk. The Khmer Rouge had to smash the Phnom Penh structure to (block) Sihanouk. (Peking) has, of course, supported Sihoanouk." ...

Defense Sectetary James Schlesinger has reported that the United States was able to remove about $500 million worth of military equipment from South Vietnam during the final hours before its downfall. This included some "high-risk" equipment computers and planes ... Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has reported to the President that Rep. Phil Burton, D.-Calif., has been giving Huse Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D.-Ore., a hard time for cooperating too closely with the Republicans.

One of the nations top consumer magazines, Medfia and Consumer, can't survive unless it gets 10,000 more subscribers. It is losing its telephone service and can't pay for its address labels ... In his bid for labor support, presidential candidate Rep. Morris Udall, D.-Ariz., has promised to push for repeal of all state right-to-work laws. Therefore, it came as a shock to the National Right to Work Committee, which supports the laws, to get a fund appeal from Udall "Dear Friend," it begins ...

The new Congress has 98 members who are reserve military officers. But only one,Sen. John Tower, R.-Tex., is an enlisted man. "He's a boatswain's mate and proud of it," an aide said ... Four Members of Congress, on the other hand, are major generals. They are Sen. Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., and Rep. Bob Sikes, D.-Fla.

WHY WE DON'T NEED FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

The premise that we need and want top-quality education for our children, with or without any prodding from the Russians, is certainly one on which agreement is unanimous. But how to do it? Our educators have perhaps gone a little overboard and taken the stand that it is merely a matter of money; that they have been neglected in favor of other more vocal groups.

If the N.Y. City electrician is worth $6 an hour for twisting a couple of wires together, with extra schooling they should be worth more. Perhaps the electrician is worth this or maybe he is grossly overpaid. The same agrument might be made of a bank robber. He sticks up and gets away with a lot of cash from some bank. Perhaps he gets thousands of dollars for each hour he puts in and maybe even doesn't turn it in on his income tax. So those of us who pursue a peaceful and lawful form of existence should certainly be as well treated as those who violate the law. We all know that the proper thing to do is to correct the errors and not compound them.

You only have to pickup the paper to see in so many cases where the Federal Government has stepped in, not only do costs go up, but the program bogs down. Take our road program. For years here in Missouri we developed good roads at a total tax cost of just a couple cents a gallon of gasoline. A few mistakes were made such as constructing some stretches of three-lane pavement. It is also true we didn't have a lot of fancy cloverleafs and take a small farm to make a normal road crossing.. Now with a total gas tax of five times this amount, costs have gone up to a million dollars a mile, and from what you read the program is in trouble and costs estimates have soared.

Everywhere I go I see new school houses. In most cases they seem to be more costly than the houses of the people who foot the bill. In this connection I would like to call your attention to some of our local school construction. Two schools with tile outer walls have been built in Webster Groves, where I live. A fancy roof and window job is in Ladue and a granite monument of the world is a product of Clayton.

Now, I am sure that no one wishes to intrude on what the people of these communities do with their money or what their tastes are along the artistic. But just stop for a moment and figure what they might have done had "Uncle" been picking up the tab for most of the cost.

You know the old argument of the more bricks we use, the busier both the factory and the mechanic are. And how all this extra money helps the town merchants! But when everybody does it, isn't it just the same thing as any other form of excess spending? Isn't it about time the taxpayer in general gets a break before he goes broke? In Webster Groves there has been quite an increase in amount of delinquent taxes in recent years. Perhaps such type of programming is responsible for this. Also, how is that going to help youngsters get a better education?

The following is offered as a suggestion. It costs you nothing and maybe is worth no more. If we put an excise tax of 5 per per cent on new houses and used this to build new schools, wouldn't this solve the problem and put the cost where it belongs? It's the new subdivision that needs the schools. And this cost is less than streets, sewers, and fancy kitchens now cost. Even less than local real estate men will charge in commission to sell the house.

As to ability to pay teachers, two of these districts spend about $600 per year per pupil, the other about $900. Now take the two lower cost districts with around 30 pupils per teacher: you have a tax intake of $18,000 per teacher (600x30), but the teacher gets only 35 per cent of this. Let's cut the fat out of the schools' overhead.

Before the last war, I helped some boys bone up for service exams and found questions in all former tests in math on the binominal theorem. No boy had heard of it. In checking, I found it was still in the book, but usually the classes "didn't get that far." Checking class progress, I believe that a reward for efficient teachers and new faces for others could cure this. A promotion schedule looking for teachers to progress from teaching - let us say - primary grades through high school and eventually becoming college professors could solve the salary increase problem. If a person never increases his ability, regardless of how many degrees he has, why is he entitled to more money every year? In place of helping the teachers beat inflation, it would help all of us, teachers included, if we took off the kid gloves and went to work cutting government spending and the so-called wage prices spiral.

It might be interesting to compare our local schools with some across the water. A quick check with a school district in South Africa would seem to indicate school principals and teachers get much less than here, so is just raising the "ante" going to get us better education? South Africa and and we have somewhat the same type ancestors, same latitude, etc. Why do they get more for their money than we do? Over there they also apparently have an hour a week religious instruction. Our separation of church and state would not permit that, but would it not pay it to put in the primary grades an hour a week of morals and ethics? And at high school, continue with an hour a week on logic and philosophy? Maybe we could overcome some delinquency problems by teaching what is right and wrong. Teaching students to think and reason could act as a vaccination against following a delusive demagogue or so-called mass movement that can easily develop with some of the things we are not only permitting but even encouraging.

We all know that if there is no money around, all of us are honest. With a 100-billion- dollar one and an added attraction for itching palsm and sticky fingers? So cutting down on governement exxpenses may also improve the morals of our citizens. Think in the hereafter how much nicer it will be to be playing a harp instead of using a shovel. So why get the Federal Government in deeper?

Actually isn't what we need more work for both pupils and teachers? Do you have a 24-hour week and work only nine months a year? Perhaps a four-term school year of 11 weeks each with two weeks' vacation would be practical. When will the teachers get their masters degrees and doctorates? Just like the average businessman: more elbow grease and midnight oil.

The Secretary of State was in St. Louis, then he stopped by Jefferson City to see a Republican Governor, a Republican Attorney General and a Republican Lieutenant Governor. Why was that trip necessary unless for pure, plain politics?

A St. Louis paper showed the above men and their wives coming down the steps of the stately Missouri mansion at Jefferson City. We have no knowledge of why Mr. Kissinger stopped in Jefferson City unless it was to consult with the three wise officials about the world situation.

Then Secretary Kissinger went on to Kansas City and met there with reporters and officials. But he was very mum about the situation over in Cambodia. Apparently from Kansas City he hurried back home to Washington. That is where he should have been in the first place.

There was a time when this newspaper pointed with pride to the man we thought was so highly intelligent. But the more we have seen him stumble and ramble around the less and less we think of him. He does not seem to be the man we thought he was as his deep, guttural voice fails to impress us any longer.

TEE IS FOR THOMAS
By RAY CROW

Today, the Memphis Open starts,
So friends, let's make a promise
To be on hand and give our hearts
To golf and Danny Thomas.
You'll see the best of touring pros-
Those super-swinging dudes-
And know the profit from it goes
To Danny's own St. Jude's.
Your ticket fee will ease the hurt
Some ailing youngster suffers-
So, come on out in gaudy shirt
With all us other duffers!

THE COURT CONSIDERS DEATH PENALTY AGAIN

Once again the Supreme Court is considering the death penalty. Is it cruel and unusual, in the meaning of the Eighth Amendment? Does it deter? Is it just? Is it imposed in a discriminatory manner? Not all the questions are new, though the argument must now be conducted within the framework of the Court's 1972 decision, which ruled that the broad discretion with which capital punishment has been applied made the death penalty unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court of North Carolina, where the case currently under consideration arose, ruled that the effect of the 1972 decision was to change North Carolina's discretionary into a mandatory death penalty law. Thers can still be discretion, opponents of the death penalty claim, even where the penalty is mandatory under the law. The prosecution can plea-bargain and bring lesser charges, and the governor can exercise executive clemency. But the Supreme Court didn't object to that in 1972, and it need not be assumed that it will now.

In an age in which man's inhumanity to man shows no decline on the individual or national scene, it seems odd to argue that the death penbalty is cruel or unusual (and it must be both to be proscribed by the Eighth Amendment). That the death penalty deters is inherently plausible and, though difficult to prove, the proposition is supported by a growing body of evidence. In New York State since the repeal of capital punishment, the proportion of murders committed by strangers--i.e., killings that are not crimes of passion by one acquaintance against another--has risen from one-fifth to one half. And even if the deterrent effect were only speculative, it seems more reasonable if error is to be made, to take the life of the guilty man on the chance of sparing the life of an innocent man by deterring his prospective killer, than to risk the innocent life for the sake of preserving the guilty.

But in the end the issue is really one of justice. For some crimes death is the only appropriate penalty that should be meted out by a society that is serious about its own nature and survival.

TURNING 'FINE PRING' INTO BASIC ENGLISH

A long-standing target of consumer advocates has been the "fine print," the legal jargon that only a crew of Philadelphia lawyers can decipher, in insurance policies.

"According to a scientific scale of readability, the standard auto policy is actually more difficult to read and understand than Einstein's theory of relativity," says Herbert S. Denenberg, former Pennsylvania insurance commissioner.

The target is beginning to waver. Not only consumerists but concerned spokesmen for the industry itself are coming to believe that insurance policies can, and must , be written in plain, simple language. A number of companies and a number of state insurance departments have begun taking steps in that direction.

The Pennsylvania insurance department, for example, has promulgated a rule that automobile insurance policies must be "understandable to a person of average intelligence and education. Legal sounding words shoudl be avoided ..."

Florida has proposed minimum, uniform readability standards for health policies, and the Illinois insurance department has asked a governor's advisory board to take up the issue of automobile policy simplification.

At the federal level, "truth in life insurance" legislation is being sponsored in Congress by Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.).

Some industry skeptics contend, however, that simplifying insurance policies is not as simple a matter as it may appear. Many parts of policies are governed by state laws and regulations, they point out. In some cases, the exact language is prescribed. If an insurance company chooses to use different language it could run into conflict with state laws and the courts might declare portions of the policy invalid.

Also, a policy is a legal contract, and over the years a body

Spider Lockhart, New York Giants defensive back, said that the best way to stop the Redskins' Larry Brown was "the same way we stopped Jim Brown. Get him a movie contract."

TAKING STOCK

When he isn't directing the affairs of State Farm Insurance Companies, Edward B. Rust works his own farm outside Bloomington, Ill. In May he became president of the U. S Chamber of Commerce. In his inaugural address in Washington, he made the following observation of the plight of those who till the land in 1973:

"On my farm, I get the practical, firsthand consequences of some of the decisions made in the ivory towers of America. For example, one of the regulations the Environmental Progection Agency has proposed for farmers states that, while livestock can be permitted to drink from streams, they will be forbidden to relieve themselves in streams. Now, I don't have any trouble explaining that regulation to you. But I am having a heck of a time explaining it to the cattle."

UNDERMINING OUR FUTURE

Writing about the end of an era, U.S. News & World Report tells how, after many years as the wealthiest nation, the United States now ranks fifth among major nations in terms of productivity measured by total output per person. The unquestioned dominance of America in technology and productivity has been eroded and is destined to erode further in the future unless strong steps are taken to change the trend.

There are many factors involved in the attrition of U.S. productivity leadership. One factor to which no one seems to have given much thought is the antienergy philosophy that has beseiged the country fro the past several years. Energy production is a recognized barometer of a nation's overall well-being which, of course, includes the per capita productivity of its citizens. This nation has witnessed a deliberate campaign over several years to cripple U.S. energy production. Power plant sites have beeen tied up in endless environmental litigation. Pollution control restrictions that go beyond the bounds of reason have led to critical fuel shortages for the generation of electricity. The enemies of nuclear energy have made a fettish of safety with the result that nuclear generation of powe r has, in many instances, been set back for years. The whole picture has been one of a country deliverately undermining its future by destroying its base of productivity -- energy. The U.S. New piece says that the U.S. is still number one in living standards among the world's great nations. But how long can such a facade of well-being be maintained when the foundation of that well-being is steadily being eaten away by the peculiar defeatist complex that something is sinful about expanding energy production in step with the needs of the American people?

The "power crisis" facing sections of the country, such as the Pacific Northwest, where news headlines tell of aluminum plants being shut down and millions of dollars lost in payrogls,shows the price of a widespread, unhealthy attitude toward the subject of energy. This is an attitude that has already cost the U.S. dearly in wealth and world leadership.

"Well," the friend replied, "I was hitch-hiking, and a girl driving this car picked me up. After a while she suddenly turned off down a lane, tore off her clothes and begged, 'Take what you want!' So I took her car."

His friend . regarded it for a moment and commented, "You did right. Her clothes wouldn't have fitted you anyway."

Too Heavy On Gloom: Depressed Auto Union Raising $150 Million Strike Fund

DETROIT--Indeed this is a strange recession. One leaves New York City shortly after a long conversation with former Tarzan movie star Fred O'Neal, now president of the AFL-CIO Associated Actors and Artistes of America, recalling that he said the deeper the recession the longer the lines at the theatrical box offices.

And in the auto town one reads the small print and discovers that the long-suffering United Auto Workers has a swiftly growing strike fund of over $110 million. And that it will be well over $150 million when the union's contract with the Big Three car manufacturers expires just about the time a bicentenially reincarnated George Washington seizes Brooklyn Heights next year.

Since this war chest comes out of members' dues, there must be a great many of them working. Especially since the union secretary treasurer Emil Mazey, last I believe of the depression sit-down auto plant seizers, says the UAW can still afford to donate over a quarter million dollars a year to Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers.

Further, we have the word of UAW's vice president Pat Greathouse that the agricultural implement sector is booming and will continue to prosper. Our farmers, with a bull market at home and abroad, need the big "cats" and tractors. I know from my own intercontinental treks that foreign farmers on both sides of the iron and bamboo curtains pray for them. So employment at International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor and John Deere will stay steady, Greathouse predicted.

It is rough on the 180,000 auto workers who are on indefinite layoffs (best figure around). But much of this is due to the invastion of foreign car manufacturers who have grabbed some 22 per cent of the American market.

In passing, it's fascinating to note that except for the Germans, the foreign car workers are arrogantly anti-American. Especially the Socialists and Communists in the unions at Volvo in Sweden and Fiat in Italy.

This 22 per cent of the American market can't hold up if our producers come up with some imaginative autos. The 22 per cent now is more than the combined sales in the U. S. of Chrysler and American Motors and nearly that of Ford. So it's a matter of selling a smaller car which can get more go for the gallon.

And there's the slight matter of getting the ecologists off the auto makers' backs. But that 22 per cent can--and will--be retaken from the foreign producers. That will put virtually all the dis-employed auto workers back on the lines in a year, according to the specialists here.

Certainly there's joblessness. But very little fear.

If some of the national labor chiefs just wouldn't go so gung-ho on doom some of the gloom would go. At this moment, even those workers who lost their Supplemental Unemployment Benefits two weeks ago are covered for costs of hospital, medical, prescription drugs, accident and life insurance. Community services organizations of both the UAW and the AFL-CIO are seeing families through all sorts of problems from marital to moratoriums on mortgages and utility bills.

It's rough on the dignity. But it isn't the grim fear of fear against which a former President warned. What it comes to across this nation is whether the cup is 10 per cent empty or 90 per cent full. Actually at least 91.1 per cent of over 92 million people are working. Of these, nearly 10 million now are tied into cost of living increases. To be blunt, not a hell of a lot of the employed appear disturbed by the jobless. Nor is there any inclination to share the work. Or for that matter to use the $110 million strike fund to ease the plight of the 180,000 unemployed auto union brothers and sisters.

Whatever is lacking in fraternity is being made up by the federal government. A high U.S. Treasury Department official reports that more than $153 billion will be disbursed by the government in individual benefit payments during fiscal year 1976. Probably more. Congress hasn't yet adjourned.

This is 44 per cent of the national outlays. Add some $37 billion in federal grants to localities and states. So the taxpayers are doing right well by their unemployed neighbors.

There are 84.1 million persons working. This leaves eight or nine million jobless depending on the day. The orators will say that even one jobless worker is too much. But the orators don't have to meet the federal bills. It may well be that this nation, for a while, will not be able to absorb the current unemployed and the newcomers pouring out of the colleges and schools.

A new WPA, new CCC camps, new work projects may be needed. Nothing wrong with these. At least the jobless will be working for their daily bread, their dignity, while they wait their turn as so many did once upon a grimmer time.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Bipartisan Plea

By JACK ANDERSON
with
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Ford made an impassioned appeal to congressional leaders the other day for a return to a bipartisan foreign policy.

He called them into the Roosevelt Room next to his office, closed the doors and told them frankly: "The situation ain't good, fellows."

Then he added earnestly: "We face a harsh reality. The national interest requires closer working together between Congress and the President."

"We ought to stress the need for a whole new era of bipartisanship," echoed Rep. William Broomfield, R.-Mich., the top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"Some people want to save money at the expense of defense," noted Rep. Phillip Butrton, D.-Calif., the Democratic caucus chairman. He asked the President, "How do you deal with it?"

"Look at the broad spectrum and it's obvious," said the President, "that this is no time to knock hell out of our insurance policy."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger tried to assess the impact of the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia upon the rest of the world.

"We can never prove the impact on the Mideast. We lost some edge there, I think,;'; he said. "Japan's prime minister is coming over to ask questions."

Then Kissinger, too, became solemn. "This is a setback, and we're going to pay for it," he said. "We can salvage something through a bipartisan undertaking in our future foreign policy conduct."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott turned to the President, who will take over the Mideast negotiations from Kissinger this month. "Can we return to step-by-step negotiations in the Mideast?" asked Scott.

"God knows we tired," was all the President had to say.

WALLACE'S WALLOP: Alabama's Gov. George Wallace could wind up with 35 per cent of the delegates at the 1976 Democratic convention, in the opinion of Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss.

The shrewd Strauss has told close associates that, at worst, Wallace can count on 22 per cent of the delegates. If the crippled Alabaman can keep up the pace, he will go to the convention with over one-third of the delegates, Strauss predicted.

This would mean the Democrats can expect their first multi-ballot convention since 1952 when Adlai Stevension finally beat out Sen. Estes Kefauver, D.-Tenn., for the presidential nomination.

Although Wallace hasn't formally announced his candidacy, he already has amassed a $3 million campaign chest and is preparing a schedule that will take him to 30 states.

The confidential Wallace plans call for skipping the New Hampshire primary. He will make appearances in California, Florida, Indiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina and Wisconsin, among other states.

Footnote: Our sources are wholly reliable, but Strauss would not confirm whether he had used the 35 and 22 per cent figures. "I've specifically refused to make any public comment with respect to the strengths and weaknesses of possible candidates," he said. "I'd like to be known, above all, as a chairman who chaired a totally fair convention."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: President Ford told Republican leaders bluntly the other day that he will fight to remain in the White House next year and that he expects their support. Sources close to the President say he has the full approval of his wife, Betty, who earlier had wanted him to get out of politics ... Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, according to a confidential document, expects North Vietnam to take over the entire country. The document quotes him as saying: "In less than a year, I would expect unification with North Vietnam." ...

Another document quotes Kissinger as saying that the victorius Cambodian Communists maneuvered to keep free of Chinese control. "In Cambodia," he said, "my judgment is that the last month of the war was not so much vs. Phnom Penh as vs. (Prince) Sihanouk. The Khmer Rouge had to smash the Phnom Penh structure to (block) Sihanouk. (Peking) has, of course, supported Sihoanouk." ...

Defense Sectetary James Schlesinger has reported that the United States was able to remove about $500 million worth of military equipment from South Vietnam during the final hours before its downfall. This included some "high-risk" equipment computers and planes ... Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has reported to the President that Rep. Phil Burton, D.-Calif., has been giving Huse Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D.-Ore., a hard time for cooperating too closely with the Republicans.

One of the nations top consumer magazines, Medfia and Consumer, can't survive unless it gets 10,000 more subscribers. It is losing its telephone service and can't pay for its address labels ... In his bid for labor support, presidential candidate Rep. Morris Udall, D.-Ariz., has promised to push for repeal of all state right-to-work laws. Therefore, it came as a shock to the National Right to Work Committee, which supports the laws, to get a fund appeal from Udall "Dear Friend," it begins ...

The new Congress has 98 members who are reserve military officers. But only one,Sen. John Tower, R.-Tex., is an enlisted man. "He's a boatswain's mate and proud of it," an aide said ... Four Members of Congress, on the other hand, are major generals. They are Sen. Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C., and Rep. Bob Sikes, D.-Fla.

Stains:

Facts on removers

By JEWEL GRADY

How do you remove grass stains? What do you do when chewing gum dries on junior's new suit? Questions such as these pose new problems today because of the new selection of fabrics. Successful stain removal starts with the selection of a method of stain removal that is suited to both stain and fabric. Immediate treatment is a key to easier stain removal for all fabric. This is especially true for some synthetics and treated cotton since grease and water stains are harder to remove and fast action with them is important.

Chances are that the homemaker suddenly faced with a stain — will have a better chance of successfully removing it promptly if she has advance knowledge.

All necessary information for removing stains is found in a revised and updated bulletin of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is "Removing Stains from Fabrics: Home Method." Copies are available for 20 cents each from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The author of this bulletin says that a fully-prepared homemaker has four types of stain removers on hand and readily available for use. These items include:

1. Absorbent materials --- cornstarch, cornmeal, talc or powdered chalk, cotton, blotter paper and sponge.
2. Soaps and detergents
3. Solvents --- Acetone, alcohol, amyl acetate turpentine, carbon tetrachloride, methyl chloroform, perchlorethylene and trichloroethylene.
4. Bleaches and chemical stain removals --- Chlorine bleaches, acetate acid, ammonia, iodine, oxalic acid and sodium thiosulfate.

Before actually starting to work on the stain, I recommend the worker must be assured that the remover chosen for the job will not damage the fabric. Some stain removers that do not damage the fiber may change the appearance of the treated area so that it looks as bad as or worse than the original stain. Make a test sample if possible before using a remover that could prove unsatisfactory for the finished job.

Some stains do not lend themselves to home methods of removing. It is best to take these to the professional drycleaner whose skill and equipment will be needed to get the stain out. Among some stains you may want to avoid working on at home and should be sent to the professionals are: Most medicine stains, paint, fingernail polish, most glues and adhesives.

Basket weave stitch has longer lifetime

By ELSA WILLIAMS

If you're just beginning to do needlework you're in luck! You have no bad habits to unlearn and you can start off doing it the right way.

For my part, I'm always especially pleased when I can start a beginner on the basket weave stitch. This wonderful stitch has been neglected for years. But pieces worked in basket weave stitch are far more satisfactory and have a longer lifetime than those done in half cross or continental stitches. All three, of course, are methods of doing the basic needlepoint (tent) stitch.

Maybe the reason people didn't grasp why the basket weave works better is because from the front it looks exactly like the other two stitches. It's the reverse side that shows where basket weave got its name. Not only does basket weave, which is worked on the diagonal, prevent ridges but it actually reinforces the canvas weave since it creates no strain, stays flexible and has a free floating bias.

I've seen strong women blanch at the thought of mastering basket weave ... and then later wonder why they thought it was difficult. Maybe the initial difficulty stems from the fact that beginners think it's easier to work in straight rows, either vertically or horizontally. Once mastered, the basket weave stitch is invaluable. In doing it, use a needle small enough to fall through the canvas holes easily. I find a No. 22 tapestry needle best for any canvas from 10 to 15 threads per inch.

Use lightweight tapestry yarn and don't pull tight, please.

One good way for beginners to check their first attempts at basket weave is to remember that the needle is always parallel to the canvas threads except when ending or beginning a new row. And the needle always goes under two threads on mono canvas.

Dear Elsa,

Should I use a hoop when I do needlepoint as I do when I embroider on linen?

W.A.

Dear W.A.,

I would never do needlepoint on a hoop. It's too bulky. Putting your canvas on a rod is most usseful for solid areas and background effects. If you're working a large design, it's very good to mount it on canvas stretchers which are sold in art needlework or artists' supplies stores.

A free illustrated leaflet showing other canvas work stitches is yours for the asking. Write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York 10017.

Shape up with Cherie

By CHERIE BLANTON

I hate to exercise but after looking at myself in the mirror last month and almost throwing up, I decided something drastic had to be done. I cut these exercises out of a magazine and they are only for people with hip and thigh problems. They came from a clinic in New York and the article said if I'd do them faithfully for at least one month, I'd go down a whole size. And if I was a little overweight and dieted at the same time I'd lose even more. So, with tongue in cheek (I'd done this exercise bit before and nothing happened), I began my 15-minute stint each day.

Brother! You talk about hurting and being tired! When you start out, you will think you are going to die. The pain in your buttocks is almost unbelievable but it is worth it. One month later, what a difference — vive' la difference! I'm still no Marilyn Monroe but I'm getting better and I do not intend to stop. I still hate to exercise but when I back my bottom up to the mirror, I no longer throw up. I only retch now and then. Who knows what a few more months may bring?

Believe me, I have tried everything before and gotten no results. This honestly does work. — So, take 15 minutes each day a month and I promise the results will more than justify the work involved. Just tell yourself, "I just have to do them today." Do not think about the whole month ahead. Once you see the end result, (do you think that could have been an intentional pun?) you will feel so good it will make those 15 minutes a joy instead of a chore.

Remember, they are hard so don't give up; it takes at least two weeks to be able to do them all like you are suppose to. Have a ball and get ready for smaller, firmer thighs and bottoms!

(1) You should never begin any kind of intensive exercising without first warming up. This is for general stretching and loosening up. Begin with feet apart, arms extended to the sides. Bend forward at the waist and bounce four times; then stretch to left side, with right palm up, bounce four times; lean back in slightly squat position, bounce four times; stretch right, bounce four times. Repeat three times. Then, bounce three times each side; repeat three times. Then two times, twice, and one time, twice. Next, run in place for 30 seconds, keeping your knees high. (2) Now begins the specific hip and thigh routine: Stand with legs apart in squat; bounce 4 times, going as low as you can. Shift weight to left, bounce four times. Return to center. Bounce four times. Shift weight to right, bounce four times. Repeat three times. Then do exercise three times with three bounces, twice with two bounces, twice with one bounce. (3)Kneel on floor. Bring right knee to forehead, then extend leg behind and arch back. Repeat 10 times. Still with leg extended, bounce leg up 10 times. Then, keeping leg extended, lower chest to floor; push up five times. Repeat with left leg. (4)Leg extended in back, foot flexed, swing led to the side and back, 10 times. Then, with leg extended to side, bounce up four times, and forward four. Repeat, other leg. (5)Leg extended to side, foot flexed facing forward, lower leg to floor and raise, 10 times. Then, with leg still extended, circle back and around four times. Repeat, other leg. (6)Leg raised, in bent-knee position at hip level, ankle slightly lower than hip, foot flexed, extend leg out to the side and back, 10 times. Repeat, other leg. (7)Leg extended to side, sit back on heel, then come back up to kneeling position, five times. Repeat, other leg. (8)Lie on side, resting on forearm. Lower leg is slightly bent. Swing upper leg backward and forward 10 times, toe pointed. Then bounce leg back 10 times. Repeat, other side. (9)Lie on side, resting on elbow and upper arm. Body should be straight, with shoulder, hip and knee aligned.

Lower leg is slightly bent, upper leg should have knee facing down, heel up. Raise and lower leg with foot flexed 20 times. Then repeat exercise resting on forearm, 15 times, and then again supporting yourself with straight arm, 10 times. Change sides, repeat. (10)This exercise should be done holding on to the back of a heavy chair or dresser, waist-high. Start on toes, hips at right angle to chair. Sink down halfway, keeping knees and ankles together, back straight. Hold for count of 10. (This is tough but fantastic for your legs!) Come back up, then down halfway again for another count of 10. Now drop all the way down to your heels, bounce up and down 10 times. (11)Similar to number 10, but this time facing chair. This is specifically for inner thighs. Start on toes, keeping heels together at all times, back straight, sink to halfway position; hold for count of 10. Drop down to heels, then come halfway up again for another count of 10. Drop down to heels and bounce 10 times. This is the final hip and thigh exercise. Now run in place, jump, shake yourself out for a minute or so. You've had a workout! And one final word: Expect to be a little sore in the beginning. These are muscles you use every day, and you'll feel them. But the final results—your slimmer and firmer hips and thighs—are certainly worth it!

Landers favors "toting" practice in expensive restaurants

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I had a dinner date with an attractive young man who is a successful attorney. He took me to a fashionable (and expensive) restaurant. As the waiter was about to clear the table, my friend asked him to please put the remainder of his steak in a bag so he could take it home to his dog. I happen to know the gentleman doesn't have a dog.

I confess I was embarrassed when he made the request. It seemed a little cheap. Upon leaving the restaurant we ran into friends. I felt very self-conscious, wondering whether or not they noticed my escort was carrying a paper sack.

Please give me your views on this.--A Blusher

Dear Blusher: I applaud your friend for having the courage to take the leftover steak home. The amount of perfectly good food thrown into restaurant garbage pails is sickening--especially now, when one sees so many pathetic pictures of starving people in other parts of the world.

My only criticism of your friend is that he "invented" the dog. I'm sure the waiter couldn't have cared less. In fact, some of the most elegant restaurants in the country encourage "toting." They even supply "People Bags."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the mother of three teenagers who read your column faithfully. You have printed several letters from mothers of overweight daughters. You always advise the mother to "quit nagging...say nothing about what the girl eats or how she looks." You insist it's an emotional problem that should be worked out with a physician and a counselor.

My problem is the opposite. It's a 16-year-old starver. The girl is skinny as a rat--always catching cold--and she looks like a scarecrow.

I've tried everything to get her to eat but she insists she's never hungry and says nobody needs three meals a day. What can a mother do with a child like this?--Beside Myself In N.J.

Dear N.J.: My advice to you is the same as to mothers who have overweight daughters. It's in your letter to me. I hope you find it and take it.

Dear Ann Landers: Convention dictates that the man is supposed to make the first move, but what if the woman has that certain feeling before he realizes he's interested in her?

I met Kurt at a party and fell for him immediately. I decided to be open and honest instead of coy and subtle. I invited him to come over for an evening of conversation. He accepted and we had a pleasant time.

Kurt never called me back, but we've bumped into each other several times. He always says, "We'll have to get together soon." But he's never done anything about it. I've sent him a couple of comical notes in the mail. No response. Please, Ann, tell me how can I win him over? He's not just another guy to me.--Serious

Dear S.: You've tried the aggressive approach and it didn't work. Now take the hint and cool it, honey. There's no way you can "win over" a man if he's not interested.

CONFIDENTIAL to Longwinded But I Love Him: Tell the doll that conclusions are an important part of every speech, especially when they come close to the beginning.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage--What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Potluck slated

Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will meet at 7 p.m., June 3 at the home of Mrs. Melvin McMackins, 617 Carroll St., for a potluck dinner. Husbands will be guests.

Polly's Pointers

Check mirror image when tapering slacks

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to taper and shape women's slacks. I have two new pairs that are very wide all the way up to the top and only have a seam on the inside of the legs. Would I have to make a seam on the outside? — MRS. S.N.

DEAR MRS. S.N. — Unless you are very young and very thin go easy on tapering your slacks too much. Look at yourself in the mirror. Look at the front and the side and rear views. Many of us look better with the straighter line. Your slacks may just be too large. Try pinning one pair up straight and the other tapered and then try them on and look in the mirror.

To get back to your question: If there is no seam on the outside of a leg it will be straight so for tapered pants a seam would have to be made on the outside and shaped from the crotch seam down. If you have a tapered pair that fits well ay them, wrong side out, flat on top of a new pair (also wrong side out) and pin the new ones along the lines of the tapered ones. Baste and try on. — POLLY.

Landers favors "toting" practice in expensive restaurants

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I had a dinner date with an attractive young man who is a successful attorney. He took me to a fashionable (and expensive) restaurant. As the waiter was about to clear the table, my friend asked him to please put the remainder of his steak in a bag so he could take it home to his dog. I happen to know the gentleman doesn't have a dog.

I confess I was embarrassed when he made the request. It seemed a little cheap. Upon leaving the restaurant we ran into friends. I felt very self-conscious, wondering whether or not they noticed my escort was carrying a paper sack.

Please give me your views on this.--A Blusher

Dear Blusher: I applaud your friend for having the courage to take the leftover steak home. The amount of perfectly good food thrown into restaurant garbage pails is sickening--especially now, when one sees so many pathetic pictures of starving people in other parts of the world.

My only criticism of your friend is that he "invented" the dog. I'm sure the waiter couldn't have cared less. In fact, some of the most elegant restaurants in the country encourage "toting." They even supply "People Bags."

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the mother of three teenagers who read your column faithfully. You have printed several letters from mothers of overweight daughters. You always advise the mother to "quit nagging...say nothing about what the girl eats or how she looks." You insist it's an emotional problem that should be worked out with a physician and a counselor.

My problem is the opposite. It's a 16-year-old starver. The girl is skinny as a rat--always catching cold--and she looks like a scarecrow.

I've tried everything to get her to eat but she insists she's never hungry and says nobody needs three meals a day. What can a mother do with a child like this?--Beside Myself In N.J.

Dear N.J.: My advice to you is the same as to mothers who have overweight daughters. It's in your letter to me. I hope you find it and take it.

Dear Ann Landers: Convention dictates that the man is supposed to make the first move, but what if the woman has that certain feeling before he realizes he's interested in her?

I met Kurt at a party and fell for him immediately. I decided to be open and honest instead of coy and subtle. I invited him to come over for an evening of conversation. He accepted and we had a pleasant time.

Kurt never called me back, but we've bumped into each other several times. He always says, "We'll have to get together soon." But he's never done anything about it. I've sent him a couple of comical notes in the mail. No response. Please, Ann, tell me how can I win him over? He's not just another guy to me.--Serious

Dear S.: You've tried the aggressive approach and it didn't work. Now take the hint and cool it, honey. There's no way you can "win over" a man if he's not interested.

CONFIDENTIAL to Longwinded But I Love Him: Tell the doll that conclusions are an important part of every speech, especially when they come close to the beginning.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage--What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Potluck slated

Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will meet at 7 p.m., June 3 at the home of Mrs. Melvin McMackins, 617 Carroll St., for a potluck dinner. Husbands will be guests.

Polly's Pointers

Check mirror image when tapering slacks

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to taper and shape women's slacks. I have two new pairs that are very wide all the way up to the top and only have a seam on the inside of the legs. Would I have to make a seam on the outside? — MRS. S.N.

DEAR MRS. S.N. — Unless you are very young and very thin go easy on tapering your slacks too much. Look at yourself in the mirror. Look at the front and the side and rear views. Many of us look better with the straighter line. Your slacks may just be too large. Try pinning one pair up straight and the other tapered and then try them on and look in the mirror.

To get back to your question: If there is no seam on the outside of a leg it will be straight so for tapered pants a seam would have to be made on the outside and shaped from the crotch seam down. If you have a tapered pair that fits well ay them, wrong side out, flat on top of a new pair (also wrong side out) and pin the new ones along the lines of the tapered ones. Baste and try on. — POLLY.

Missouri residents benefit

Missouri residents received $22.3 million in benefits last year from Connecticut General Insurance Corporation's two major subsidiaries.

Connecticut General Life Insurance Company paid $16.5 million to policyholders and beneficiaries, up 12 percent, of which $12.9 million represented "living benefits" such as accident and health insurance benefits, annuity payments, and endowments. In addition, Aetna Insurance Company, its property and casualty affiliate, paid $5.8 million to policyholders, an 81 percent increase from 1973.

The nation's eighth largest life insurer said it wrote over $76 million in new individual and group life insurance protection in the state during 1974, bringing its total life insurance in force in Missouri to $1 billion.

At the end of 1974, Connecticut General Life and "Little" Aetna had more than $111 million invested in Missouri. The figure represents investments in bond, mortgage loans or real estate throughout the state.

Lynn Cridr Jr. of Sikeston, local representative for Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha, was recently awarded a certificate of proficiency for successful completion of an intensive course in life insurance underwriting.

The school, which incorporates the most advanced methods of educational training, utilizes complete audiovisual facilities. It was held at the home office in Omaha, Neb.

Invitations are extended only to career representatives and are based upon completion of study courses and sales achievements.

Crider is associated with the Jack Williams Division Office, general agency for Mutual and United in Cape Girardeau.

Fuel consumption down

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — For the second straight month fuel consumption in Missouri has dropped below 1974 levels, figures released today by the Revenue Department showed.

The April figures showed that only 208 million gallons were used during that month compared with 214.5 million gallons in April 1974, a 3 per cent drop.

"It's rather difficult to understand because the prices (for fuel) have not been that high," said the chief state highway engineer, Robert Hunter, whose department is directly affected by reduced fuel consumption since fuel tax funds are used primarily for highway maintenance and repair.

Hunter said there have been reports that trucking is off about 20 per cent, which would have a significant effect on fuel consumption.

"But we see no appreciable change in volumes" of automobile traffic, he added, suggesting that a possible reason for the reduction is that more motorists are abiding by the fuel-saving 55 mile-an-hour speed limit, which had been in effect for less than two months in April last year.

The Highway Department lost about $10 million in 1974 due to reduced revenues from the fuel tax over 1973 levels. But Hunter said it was too soon to predict what would happen to fuel tax revenues this year based only on the first four months.

"You have to look at this thing over an extended period before you can spot any trend," he said.

January figures showed a 17.4 per cent fuel usage increase over 1974, but the increase in February dropped to only 4.8 per cent. March usage dropped 4.9 per cent below 1974 levels, and that coupled with the decline last month has left the cumulative total for the first four months this year 3.3 per cent above last year but still behind usage for 1973.

Small business week is proclaimed by Bond

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher S. Bond, declaring that "small business means independent enterprise and as such is the very foundation of our American economic system and tradition," has proclaimed this week Missouri Small Business Week.

The governor pointed out that 96 per cent of all business today is small and that it accounts for three-fourths of the total volume of sales and one-third of all manufacturing. "additionally," he said, 'it provides a door through which increasing numbers of minority enterprisers are entering the mainstream of commerce and industry."

"If small business is to realize its full potential in the years ahead," the proclamation stated, "it needs and deserves whole-hearted support from citizens and the business community as a whole, as well as the positive encouragement it already receives from government."

Bond commended the Missouri Small Businessman of the Year, Don Walsworth, Walsworth Publishing Co., Inc., Marcceline, "for his excellent efforts as an example of the free enterprise system."

Numerical Control, Inc., a St. Louis- based firm, was awarded the SBA Small Business Prime Contractor of the Year Award by the governor. The firm was chosen from nominees in the four-state area of Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

Man attends course

Jerry Looney, 111 Fifth St., recently completed a three-day course in advanced automotive air conditioning service at the J. C. Penney regional training center in suburban Chicago.

Looney, a service technician at the J. C. Penney Auto Center in Kingsway Plaza Shopping Center, joined the company in 1973.

The course offered in-depth technical training in maintenance and repair of both factory-installed and J. C. Penney air conditioning units, in preparation for customers' needs this spring and summer. It is one of nearly 30 courses taught at the center for sales, service and management associates.

CIRCUIT COURT

NEW MADRID—Two persons pleaded guilty to criminal charges Tuesday in Circuit Court and were granted probation by Judge William L. Ragland.

Linda Thatcher Mims of Charleston was placed on probation without supervision after being sentenced to two years in custody of the State Department of Corrections after she pleaded guilty to felonious stealing. She was accused of stealing a television set on Oct. 28, 1973 at the Cottonboll Inn motel at Marston.

Richard James Watson Jr. of East Prairie was placed on supervised probation after receiving a two-year sentence in custody of the Department of Corrections. He pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of burglary tools on Feb. 20, 1975. He and two other East Prairie youths were arrested by the highway patrol and Morehouse police as they were apparently attempting to break into Morehouse Drug Co.

Patty Fay Harris was granted a judgment for the correction of her birth certificate, which incorrectly listed her date of birth as April 14, 1959, to the corrected date of April 14, 1958, and also to change and correct the maiden name of her mother, which was listed as Harris and should be listed as Knight.

A $4,000 judgment was awarded Jerry Matlock for personal injuries in a damage suit against the Housing Authority of Portageville. Matlock claimed he received permanent injuries to his left foot and the loss of two toes when he caught his foot in a hydraulic elevator while playing on a garbage truck that belonged to the housing authority.

Paul L. Hodge of West Memphis, Ark., was granted a judgment for possession of a 1974 automobile that had been seized on March 7 from Eric L. Bennett by the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department. Bennett was driving the car when he was arrested for possession of marijuana and the car had been impounded.

BIRTHS

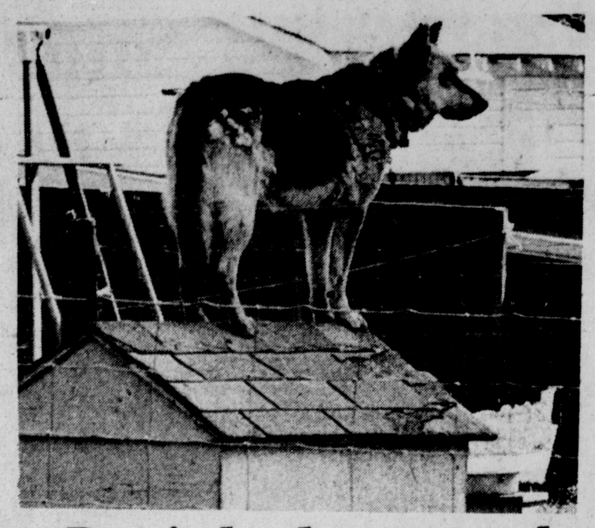
ESTES--Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ray Estes of Charleston are parents of their second child, a son born April 30 at 12:37 a.m. in Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape Girardeau. The boy weighed six pounds 13 ounces and has been named Larry Ray Jr.

Mrs. Estes is the former Wilma Irene McMillen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Gray McMillen of Bertrand. Estes is a tow operator for Buckhart Manufacturing Co. in Cairo, Ill., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindell Estes of Charleston.

HANNERS--Mr. and Mrs. David Hanners of Commerce are parents of a son born May 18 at 9:28 a.m. in Southeast Missouri Hospital. The boy weighed six pounds two ounces and has been named Brock Daniel.

Mrs. Hanners is the former Brenda Simms, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Simms of Sikeston Route Four and Russell Simms of Commerce. Hanners is an assembly line worker for Bunny Bread in Cape Girardeau, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Hanners of Millersville.

Benjamin Franklin once said, "Experience keeps a dear school, yet fools will learn in no other."



Dog's lookout perch

This is one dog who does not appear to be afraid of heights. Michaelangelo III, a four-year-old German Shepherd owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson, 240 W. Murray Lane, likes to spend his spare time anxiously gazing from his roost atop the doghouse.

The notice must say that the amount of the increase would be 12.5 per cent for gas customers in the southeast division, 20 per cent for gas customers in the central division, 39 per cent for electric customers in the southeast division, and 19 per cent for water customers in Cape Girardeau.

The proposed permanent electric, gas and water rates have been suspended by the commission.

The company also has pending before the commission requests for interim rate increases. It filed last year for an interim increase that would, over a six-month period, generate additional revenues of about $1.4 million from electric service in the southeast division, $155,000 from gas service in the southeast division, and $377,000 from gas service in the central division. Those interim requests were suspended by the commission, which held hearings on them earlier this year.

On May 22, the company filed revised interim tariffs, asking that they be made effecctive on June 23. Those tariffs, if approved, would generate additional revenues at the rate of $1.4 million per year from electric service in the southeast division, $42,000 per year from gas service in the southeast division, and $260,000 per year from gas service in the central division.

The company's central division is composed of Boone, Cooper, Miller, Moniteau, Morgan and Pettis counties. The southeast division is made up of Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Saline, Scott and Stoddard counties. Water service is provided only in the City of Cape Girardeau.

prices, probably over the next 18 to 24 months. Such a move, which could be blocked by Congress, would raise consumer prices for petroleum products by at least six cents a gallon.

In addition, Ford administration officials say they expect the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries to raise the cost of their petroleum products by 10 to 15 per cent this autumn. Such a boost would add another 1 to 1½ cents to a gallon of gasoline.

Ford said he had delayed the tariff increases in March and April after congressional leaders had "promised to come up with a congressional energy program better than mine" but they didn't.

Declaring that Congress had "done nothing" on energy legislation, Ford picked up a calendar and ripped off pages for the months of February, March, April and May to dramatize his point that Congress had four months to develop an alternative program but failed.

"The Congress cannot drift, dawdle and debate forever with America's future," Ford said.

The President said "our American economy runs on energy. No energy, no jobs ... The sudden fourfold increase in foreign oil prices and the 1973 embargo helped throw us into this recession.

"We are now on our way out of the recession. Another oil embargo could throw us back.

3 receive scholarships

EAST PRAIRIE — Paula Hooten, Anthony Blumenberg and Willy Wood, 1974-75 graduates of East Prairie High School, received the second annual scholarships awarded by First Bank of East Prairie in honor of past presidents of the bank's board of directors.

The $500 scholarships are to be applied on the students' expenses during the 1975-76 school year at the college of their choice.

Miss Hooten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hooten, received the Murray Cobb scholarship from the bank.

During her high school years, she has been a member of Future Homemakers of America, choir, Link yearbook and Rapper student newspaper staffs; was named most courteous in the senior class who's who; and received the typing award her sophomore year and perfect attendance certificate this year.

In addition to the Muray Cobb scholarship, she received the Community Teachers Association scholarship and the MFA scholarship.

Blumenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Blumenberg, received the H. S. Roberts scholarship.

He was president of the student council his senior year and a member of the council for three years.

He was a member of Future Farmers of America and Youth for Community Betterment for three years; science club, two years; photography club, three years; choir, four years; basketball team, four years; and was in the FFA all-state choir.

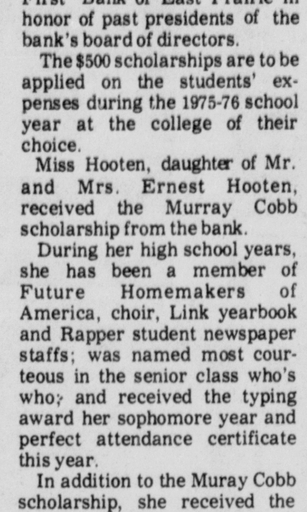
Blumenberg was also on the Rapper, Talon and Link staffs, was named best actor in the junior play and also was in the senior play cast. He was named most courteous in the senior class who's who and to the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Douglas, received the George Shelby scholarship.

During his senior year, he received the English Award, National Council of Teachers of English achievement award in writing and was named best all-around senior student. He also received honorable mention recognition of the American history award.

A member of the National Honor Society, Wood was also a member of the student council for two years; science club, two years; band, four years; pep band, four years; stage band, two years; basketball team, four years; and baseball team, two years.

Wood was editor of the Link this year and was on the Rapper staff. A Link attendant his freshman year, he has received a bronze typing award and perfect attendance award his junior year.



Dona Holt

Girl graduates

BENTON — Dona Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Holt, graduated May 11 from the nurses training program at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau and is a registered nurse.

She will begin work June 2 at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Records show fewer persons were killed in hunting accidents in 1974 than in any other year since the hunter safety training program began 21 years ago. There were nine fatalities in '74.

Improvements bill get 1st approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $52 million capital improvements bill containing funds for a new University of Missouri-Kansas City law school building and two new state prisons received first-round Missouri House approval Tuesday.

In addition, the House sent eight bills outlining state operating expenditures to a conference committee between House and Senate negotiators to work out differences.

The $837,500 for the site and planning of the law school in Kansas City stayed intact from the House Appropriations Committee's recommendations, but the location of the proposed building was altered.

The committee had recommended that the new facility be placed on th e Independence campus, but Rep. James Baker, D-Kansas City, successfully moved to strike that requirement. University officials have favored placing the bilding next to existing law facilities on the Kansas City campus.

The $7 million to build two medium security prisons near St. Louis and Kansas City was okayed after Appropriations Chairman James Russell said they are needed to alleviate currently overcrowded prison conditions.

The bill also includes $125,000 each for tourist information centers in Cape Girardeau and Independence.

Amendments were defeated which would have placed a tourist center in St. Joseph and restored $7 million for the completion of the Wainwright Building state office complex in St. Louis.

The eight bills outlining the state operating expenditures for next year were sent to a conference committee only after an attempt to bind House negotiators to the House's $187,000 for the public counsel's office was dropped. The Senate has approved $68,000 for the office, which represents consumers before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, agreed to withdraw the motion after other House members said it could set a bad precedent which could bog down future compromises.

It is claimed the first settlement of white pioneers in Nevada was a Mormon trading post now called Genoa.

The bill also includes $125,000 each for tourist information centers in Cape Girardeau and Independence.

Amendments were defeated which would have placed a tourist center in St. Joseph and restored $7 million for the completion of the Wainwright Building state office complex in St. Louis.

The eight bills outlining the state operating expenditures for next year were sent to a conference committee only after an attempt to bind House negotiators to the House's $187,000 for the public counsel's office was dropped. The Senate has approved $68,000 for the office, which represents consumers before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, agreed to withdraw the motion after other House members said it could set a bad precedent which could bog down future compromises.

It is claimed the first settlement of white pioneers in Nevada was a Mormon trading post now called Genoa.

Leible clips Bank

Leible Implement rallied for two runs in the seventh inning to calm a 5-4 Sr. Babe Ruth opening season victory over Security National Bank at VFW stadium Tuesday night.

Ricky Cobb provided the key blow in the final inning when he ripped a double to drive home Bill Schatzley and Carl Medleburg, who had singled to open the inning.

Security took a 2-0 lead in the first and held Leible scoreless until the third when they scored one run. The bank went ahead in the top of the fourth with two runs for a 3-2 lead, but Leible rallied back for a pair of runs to reclainm a 4-3 edge.

Cobb claimed the victory with a five hit pitching performance.

Jackson paced the Banks hitters with two safties and Shell had the Banks lone extra base hit, a double in the two run first inning.

DALLAS (AP) — Israel's World Cup soccer team will play the Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League June 3 in the Texas Stadium.

The Dallas game will be the sixth of an eight-game United States tour for the Israelis.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Lee of the Boston Red Sox, who allowed just seven hits in pitching two shutouts last week, has been named the American League's Player of the Week, the league announced today.

On May 20, Lee stopped the defending champion Oakland A's 7-0 on just two hits. Then Saturday, in a nationally televised game, Lee blanked California 6-0 on five hits. He has a string of 22 consecutive scoreless innings.

Runner-up for the award was Gene Tenace of Oakland, who hit .414 with five homers and 12 RBI last week.

Davis & Bird win opener

Davis & Bird joined Nowell Construction as opening night winners in the Jr. Babe Ruth league as action got underway at the new sports complex Tuesday night.

In the league's traditional opening contest, D & B raced past the Bank of Sikeston 8-1 and Nowell followed with a 6-5 verdict over Elliott- Newton.

Mayor Don Fulton threw out the first ball to signal the start of the new season and the opening of the new complex.

Greer fashioned a five hitter and had a shutout going until the sixth when the Bank socred their only run when Braden, the games losing hurler, singled home the teams lone tally.

Davis & Bird opened the scoring in the first inning and added another tally in the third and led only 2-1 going into the last of the sixth when they pushed six big runs across the plate for their lopsided verdict. Nowell relied on the three hit pitching performance of Lawrence ton the way to its 6-5 victory.

Lawrence held E & N hitness until the third and then allowed only one hit in each of the next two innings and held off a seventh inning uprising that fell one run short of a tie when he struck out the final batter.

Nowell jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first. Elliott-Newton charged back to tie the score in the second before Nowell went ahead for good with three tallies in the third and held a 6-1 lead going into the bottom of the fifth. E&N began to take advantage of poor fielding and sent two runs home in the last of the fifth and another pair in the seventh before Lawrence relied on his pitching talents by striking out two of the batters in the final inning after two runs had scored on no hits.

Longstreet, Lawrence and Lambert connected for doubles during the contest while Lawrence Dock paced Nowell's five hit attack with two safties. Lambert had two of E&N's three hits.

Bank loses first

Oran edged Sikeston Security National Bank Friday night 4-3 and left the two teams tied for the league lead. It was the first loss of the season for Sikeston.

Oran's next game will be against Scott City on home territory.

Don Robert, the winning pitcher, allowed six hits and fanned a total of six batters for an outstanding performance. Bob Blair, the losing pitcher, fanned two Batters in the game. Oran's record is now 10-1 for the season.

For Oran, Tenkoff was 3-2 at the plate with a total of two runs batted in. Hahn had a hit and one run batted in. Glasetter also smashed a hit and had one run batted in. For Sikeston, Pearson was the leader with a two run homer and Pyles scored a run and had one run batted in.

Oran knocked the most runs in the fifth inning with two scored. They also made one in the second and one in the third. For Sikeston, they packed their runs in with two in the fourth and one in the third.

Meramec in must situation

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Meramec Community College of St. Louis puts its National Junior College Baseball Tournament title on the line tonight against Yavapai of Prescott, Ariz.

Meramec has already lost once in the double-elimination tournament, while Yavapai comes into the game with a clean slate, having swept four games. Meramec's lone loss was an 8-5 setback at the hands of Yavapai on Sunday night.

The title would not be decided until Thursday night if Meramec manages a victory in tonight's showdown.

Both finalists got solid pitching Tuesday night. Meramec ousted Louisburg, N.C., 6-1 and Yavapai dumped Middle Georgia 7-2.

Kevin McGrath pitched 3 2-3 innings of one-hit relief to preserve the Meramec triumph over Louisburg.

Starter George Elkins got into difficulty in the sixth inning. Runners were on first and second when McGrath entered the game and ended the inning with two groundouts. The only hit he surrendered was a ninth inning double by Randy Warick.

Chris Berra's double produced two runs in the first inning, and the Warriors pushed across two more in the sixth, sandwiched by single runs in the fifth and seventh.

Louisburg's only run came in the third inning when Kelly Miller drove in Marvin Wooten with a two-out single.

Louisburg finished its season with a 31-5 record.

Yavapai exploded for six runs in the first inning and pitcher Don Hanna made it stand up in the verdict over Middle Georgia.

Hanna, in boosting his season record to 17-1, survived a shaky start. He gave up three hits and a walk as he was reached for a pair of runs in the bottom of the first. But he scattered just three hits the rest of the way and recorded nine strikeouts.

Brock hits for cycle

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Base-stealing whiz Lou Brock says he owns a motorcycle, and the San Diego Padres suspect he may be revving it up at home plate.

The 35-year-old Brock, who is in the midst of a tear at bat, hit for the cycle Tuesday night and afterward remained animated in the clubhouse of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"What cycle?" Brock asked teasingly of reporters in respect to his homer, triple, double and single in five times at bat to key a 7-1 Cards win.

"I have a motorcycle," Brock mused, a chuckle escaping his throat. "I don't know anything about cycles," he added. "You guys have all the statistics in the press box."

For all his accomplishments, Brock was unable to recall a previous performance to match his feat.

"Perhaps I have, but I don't think so," he said. "I know I've hit about five or six home runs into the center field seats. The last one, I think, was in 1970 or '71 against Ron Schueler."

Brock's momentous night began with a single in the opening inning at the expense of Padres starter Dave Freisleben, 3-5.

Two innings later he sent St. Louis on top 1-0 with his home run, a 415-foot drive on Freisleben's first pitch, and in the fifth he tripled with Cards winner Bob Forsch, 5-3, on base only to be tagged out after rounding third base too far.

"You never know," maintained Brock when reminded that an inside-the-park homer he had envisioned might have deprived him of the cycle.

"I hit three breaking balls and a fast ball," said the Cards left fielder, who capped his performance with a double in the eighth off ex-teammate Alan Foster.

Brock's spree boosted his batting average to .342 from a mark of .253 he carried May 8 following a slump attributable in part to a shoulder injury.

In 17 games since then, the eight-time National League base-stealing king has hit at a .437 clip, pounding out two homers and three triples among 31 hits in 71 trips to the plate.

"Anytime a guy is going bad he's looking for a pitch to put in play," Brock explained. "Earlier I was fouling that pitch off."

The 6-foot-4 Forsch, who yielded five San Diego hits, contributed two singles to an 11-hit Cards attack and helped spark a four-run rally in the sixth.

"Maybe he didn't trust us and felt he had to do a little hitting himself," suggested Reggie Smith, whose bases-loaded single climaxed the burst.

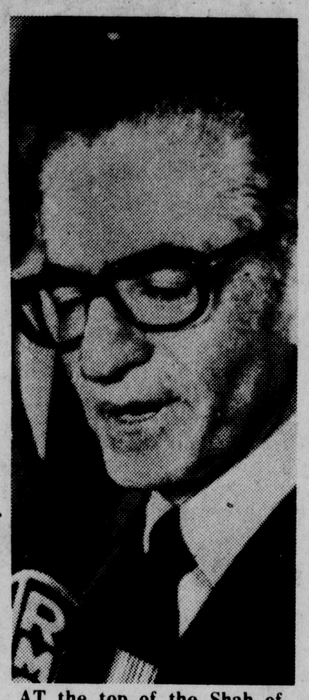
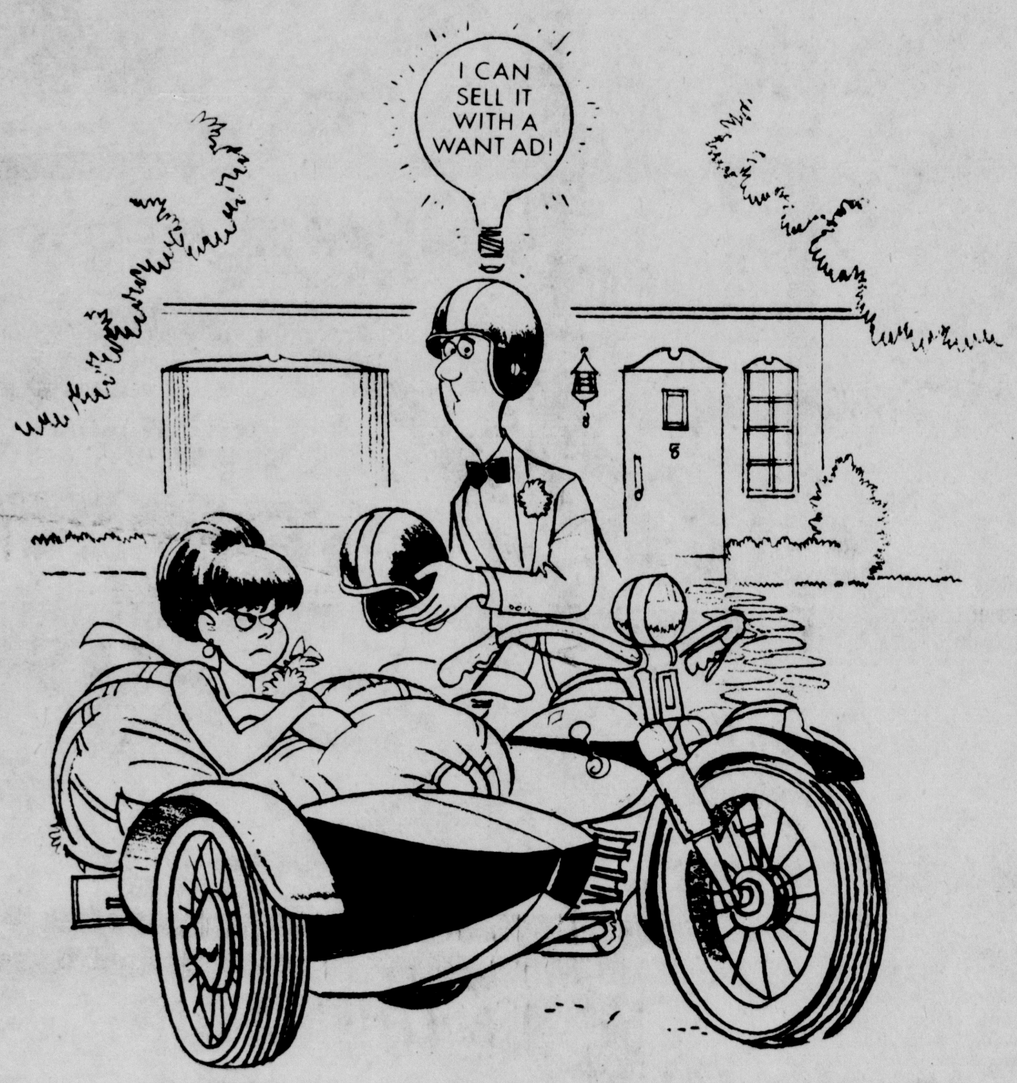
ADMIRING HIS LIKENESS, Peter DePaolo, winner of the Indianapolis 500 in 1925, looks over the sculptured likenesses of other Indy winners whose faces are added to the Borg-Warner trophy awarded each year. Pointing out his name on the sterling silver trophy is 19-year old Kathryn Ball, 1975 queen of the annual race to be held May 25.

GETTING their money's worth from 29-year old Jo Daly, the San Francisco Human Rights Commission is believed the first such agency to appoint Ms. Daly, a lesbian, to work exclusively on problems between the city and members of the gay community.



AT the top of the Shah of Iran's agenda during his visit to Washington, D.C. were several meetings with corporate heads of Pan American World Airways currently negotiating a $300 million deal with Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi's oil rich nation.



THAT'S THE IDEA!

If three wheels is one too few to make her happy when you go on a very special date, the time has come to find a buyer for the cycle. Sell it for cash to buy a new set of wheels with less fresh air and more comfort. Use a Standard Want Ad. to find a willing buyer. Just dial 471-4141 and a friendly Ad-Visor will help you solve the problem.

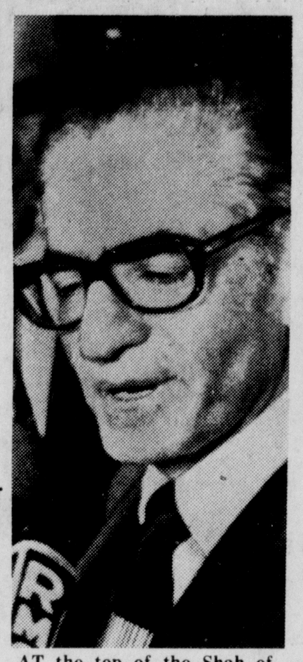
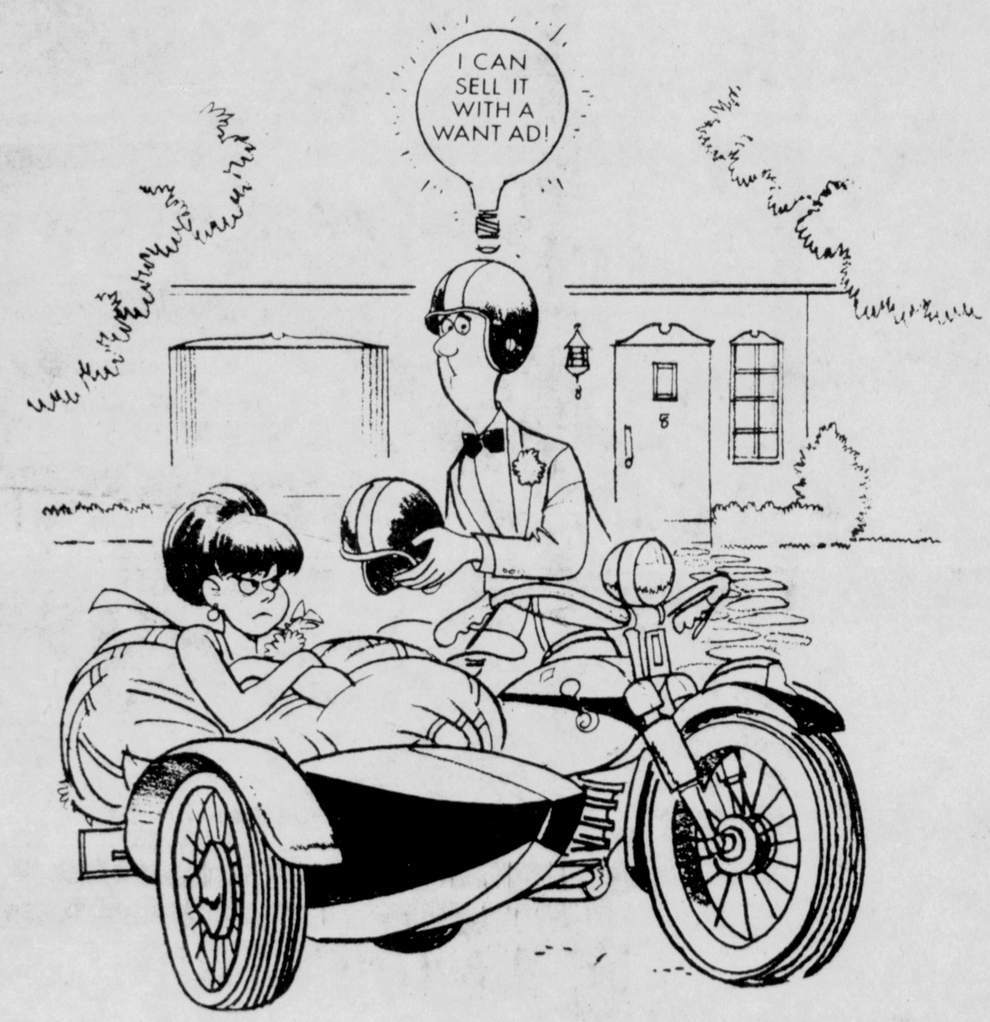
ADMIRING HIS LIKENESS, Peter DePaolo, winner of the Indianapolis 500 in 1925, looks over the sculptured likenesses of other Indy winners whose faces are added to the Borg-Warner trophy awarded each year. Pointing out his name on the sterling silver trophy is 19-year old Kathryn Ball, 1975 queen of the annual race to be held May 25.

GETTING their money's worth from 29-year old Jo Daly, the San Francisco Human Rights Commission is believed the first such agency to appoint Ms. Daly, a lesbian, to work exclusively on problems between the city and members of the gay community.



AT the top of the Shah of Iran's agenda during his visit to Washington, D.C. were several meetings with corporate heads of Pan American World Airways currently negotiating a $300 million deal with Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi's oil rich nation.



THAT'S THE IDEA!

If three wheels is one too few to make her happy when you go on a very special date, the time has come to find a buyer for the cycle. Sell it for cash to buy a new set of wheels with less fresh air and more comfort. Use a Standard Want Ad. to find a willing buyer. Fire run is short

Firemen were called about 2 p.m. to Sims Big 10 service station, 411 W. Malone Ave., when an electrical short circuit set fire to a gasoline pump. The service station is next door to Fire Station No. 1. There was no damage to the pump. (Daily Standard photo)

Girl wins scholarship

EAST PRAIRIE—Miss Paula Jane Hooten is the winner of the MFA college scholarship awarded to a member of this year's graduating class at East Prairie High School. The announcement was made at the awards assembly May 22.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hooten of East Prairie.

Miss Hooten plans to attend Southeast Missouri State University and expects to major in elementary education.

While attending high school, Miss Hooten was a member of the Future Homemakers of America. In addition, she is a member of her church choir and teaches a Sunday School class for children in the primary grades.

The $250 scholarship was donated by the MFA Foundation and MFA Oil Co. bulk plant at East Prairie. It is one of 172 college scholarships being presented to Missouri high school graduates this year by the Missouri Farmers Association and affiliated agencies.

Firemen were called about 2 p.m. to Sims Big 10 service station, 411 W. Malone Ave., when an electrical short circuit set fire to a gasoline pump. The service station is next door to Fire Station No. 1. There was no damage to the pump. (Daily Standard photo)

Girl wins scholarship

EAST PRAIRIE—Miss Paula Jane Hooten is the winner of the MFA college scholarship awarded to a member of this year's graduating class at East Prairie High School. The announcement was made at the awards assembly May 22.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hooten of East Prairie.

Miss Hooten plans to attend Southeast Missouri State University and expects to major in elementary education.

While attending high school, Miss Hooten was a member of the Future Homemakers of America. In addition, she is a member of her church choir and teaches a Sunday School class for children in the primary grades.

The $250 scholarship was donated by the MFA Foundation and MFA Oil Co. bulk plant at East Prairie. It is one of 172 college scholarships being presented to Missouri high school graduates this year by the Missouri Farmers Association and affiliated agencies.

Bills on ERA, jail: delays and advances

ERA VOTE DELAYED: JAIL BILL ADVANCES

JEFFERSON CITY — A group supporting the Equal Rights amendment at the State Capitol last week for what it thought would be final Senate action on this controversial legislation.

But while members of Missouri's chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW) staged a 12-hour vigil on the Capitol steps, the Senate postponed its vote once again.

The amendment is reported to be two votes short of the 18 necessary for passage, and Senate sources indicated that ERA supporters in the Senate stalled a final vote until this week in hopes of gaining passage.

Dressed in mourning robes and chains, the women demonstrated against the legislature's failure to pass ERA. But the protest may have done more harm than good.

Sens. Larry Marshall (R-Columbia) and Jack Gant (D-Independence) approached the women after the Senate recessed for lunch an asked them to stop the demonstration. They told the group that they were having an "adverse effect on proponents and opponents" of te bill.

After some additional urging from a NOW national lobbyist, the women gave up the vigil and left.

After all this was taking place, the House was giving final approval to a minimum jail standards bill which would require jails to meet health, santiary, fire safety and prisoner safety standards.

The bill now goes to the Senate criminal justice committee. Sen. Ike Skelton (D-Lexington), chairman of the committee, is supporting a similar bill in the Senate. But since the House bill is farther along thatn Skelton's, it is expected to stand a better chance for passage.

The Senate approved a bill that would change the campaign finance law passed by Missouri voters last fall.

During heated floor debate, Sen. Donald J. Gralike (D-St. Louis) said the proposal creates a "loophole big enough to drive a legal truck through". He called it a bill "for the rich and super rich".

The bill's sponsor. Sen. John D. Schneider (D-St. Louis), admitted that while the bill was "not perfect", it did protect candidates like doctors and lawyers who, under the present law, would have to reveal the names of their patients and clients.

The $36 million emergency appropriations bill appeared to be on its way to the Governor's desk before a dispute broke out over an appropriation for the purchase of the former Marillac College campus in St. Louis.

After the Senate approved the bill on May 15, Sen. Robert Young (D-St.Ann) discovered a change in its wording that stipulated that the purchase of the Marillac College campus must be linked to the establishment of an optometry school on the site.

Senators in the House- Senate conference committee which had passed the bill insist the bill they signed had the two items separated. The Senate, fearing Gov. Bond's reported intentions of veoting the school, sought to keep the school separate from the land purchase.

After Young's discovery of the change, the Senate reconsidered the bill on May 19 and rejected it. The next day Russell, after a meeting with the House leadership, recommended to the House that the bill be taken up in another House- Senate Committee.

But the committee has not been able to reach a compromise since that time. Russell wants the bill to read the way he changed it. The Senate refuses to accept the change.

Observers feel Russell is flexing his political muscles by standing firm on aposition that has become unpopular with several members in both the House and Senate. As a result, the bill may be hopelessly deadlocked in committee, and in danger of failing to reach the Senate before the June 8 deadline on appropriations action.

Sen. Skelton is expected to make another attempt to open debate on a bill restoring the death penalty in Missouri.

Skelton tried several times on Thursday to be recognized. But Lt. Gov. William Phelps, the Senate president, refused to recognize him.

Senate observers feel certain that this was a concentrated effort by the leadership to keep the bill from debate until more Senators were present.

Miss Adilda McCord, principal of the Sikeston grade school, has received an incomplete list of the awards to pupils who entered the Palmer System writing contests. The highest prize went to Charles Prow, a seventh grade boy, who won a high school diploma for his excellence in penmanship.

Dr. H. J. Stewart, who has been a resident of Sikeston since 1918, will open up offices in the central offices of the Scott County Milling Co., building soon. His practice will be confined to treatment of eye, ear, nose, and throat troubles.

The high school was presented with a very fine portrait of Robert E. Lee Monday from the Sikeston chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Fats conquered the Leans with a score of 11-10 in a seven-inning game put on by members of the Russell-Bradley Missionary Society at the Fairgrounds Wednesday. Home runs were hit by Mrs. Effie Lindley, Mrs. Ella Schubert, and Miss Irene Caldwell.

M. E. Montgomery, formerly Scott County Prosecuting Attorney, will speak at the American Legion post Memorial Day services at the City Cemetery Sunday. Mr. Montgomery is a veteran of the World War, in which he served 18 months with the Navy, during the last part as an ensign.

Silas Richard Sitzes, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O.F. Sitzes, suffered serious burns about his left eye Tuesday when hot metal entered the eye while he was standing in the yard of his home on Sikes avenue.

James C. Smith, father of Mrs. T.F. Henry, died here at his daughter's home Saturday. Mr. Smith, who died of hemmorrhage of the intestines, suffered with chronic leakage of the heart. He was 86 years oild.

High school activities were ended for 45 seniors Monday when they marched to the stage and sat in caps and gowns witnessing the program of their commencement exercises. Dr. Franc McCluer, president of Westminster College at Fulton, spoke to the graduates.

Honor graduates were Mary Margaret Russell and Pauline Husher with Evelyn Allard, third. John Layton was the highest ranking boy graduate with Bill Donnell, second. Of the juniors, Betty Bell Donnell led her class last year while Clay Mitchell did so as a freshman with Martha Jane Marshall winning the DAR eighth prize and Clint Denman, the eighth grade citizenship award. Marvin Rayburn and Eleanor Harty were the high ranking students in the sophomore class.

Becky Chidester, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tom L. Chidester, celebrated her seventh birthday with a party Friday.

Parma–Funeral services for Mrs. Mandy Jane Gregory Warren, 92, a resident of this area most of her life, were held this afternoon.

The baby son of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Baker, Sikeston, born May 16 at the Delta Community Hospital, came into the world as an unusual child in that within three days after birth he grew his first tooth. This, according to the attending physician, is quite a rarity.

Eleven lettermen, four provisional and two letters to team managers were announced today by Wendell Hubbs, coach of the high school baseball team. Bob Lohr, Don Keller, Glenn Matthews and Bob Dyer all received their third letter, Larry Bennett and Tom Nelson were awarded their second and initial letter went to Wallace Bobo, Ron Carmody, Jerome Hulehan, Bob Jines and Marshall Moore.

A bad golf shot took Charles D. Matthews, University of Missouri student and son of Mrs. C. D. Matthews III, of JSikeston, to a point near the south airport lake, Columbia, Tuesday, where he could see men struggling in the lake after their boat had capsized. Matthews went in and brought Paul Kovar safely to shore and then went back to help Jim Jenkins, another university student who had been with Matthews and, with him, had gone into the lake on the rescue effort, to try and recover the body of the second man, Harrison "Sugar" Buckner.

Loren G. Evans, 37, a former Canalou resident, died unexpectedly today at his St. Louis home.

What's the law?

The case of the bankrupt policeman

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Officer O'Reilly was great at catching criminals. He had less success, however, in shaking creditors. In fact, between his mortgage payments and the high cost of living, he couldn't have been more in the red had he been Karl Marx himself.

The remedy? Officer O'Reilly finally went into bankruptcy and wiped out his debts. Unfortunately, when the police commissioner heard about it, he wiped O'Reilly's job. He fired O'Reilly for violating a police department regulation that prohibited policemen from going into bankruptcy.

Attacking the legality of the regulation, the busted cop took the matter to court where he demanded that he be put back on the beat.

"Since policemen aren't exempted from inflation and the high cost of existing," he argued, "they can't be exempted from the bankruptcy laws either. And, that's the effect of the regulation."

"If policemen know that they can't go into bankruptcy," responded the police commissioner, "they're not as likely to incur heavy debts and be less vulnerable to bribes. Furthermore, it's damaging to an officer's image to go into bankruptcy. Image is essential to law enforcement. Consequently, the regulation is perfectly reasonable, necessary and legal."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put the busted cop back on the beat by declaring the anti-bankruptcy regulation invalid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a primary purpose of the bankruptcy act is to give debtors a new opportunity in life, unhampered by the pressures and discouragement of preexisting debts. Policemen, concluded the judge in effect, are entitled to this new opportunity in life like anyone else.

Veterinarian's office

DEXTER — The Stoddard County Sheriff's department is investigating a break-in which occurred sometime Monday night at the office of Dr. E. G. Bailey, veterinarian, located on Route Three.

The break-in was discovered early today by an employe.

A small amount of change from a money box was the only item discovered missing. However, Dr. Bailey is out of town and a complete inventory will be made when he returns later today.

Low blood sugar needs good diet

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have hypoglycemia and would greatly appreciate any information you could send me about it. My oldest brother is a diabetic. My endocrinologist has me on a 1000-calorie high protein diet.

DEAR READER — The interesting thing about your diagnosis is your brother's diabetes. Sometimes hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) precedes the development of diabetes (high blood sugar).

In these instances the defect is really in the islets of Langerhan's of the pancreas, the place where insulin is produced. Normally when the amount of sugar (glucose) in your small intestine rises after eating sweets the islets release an increased amount of insulin. Your body literally releases whatever amount of insulin you need to control the level of your blood sugar.

When the islets are defective they may release insulin too late, long after the peak sugar load. The result is the extra insulin, released into the bloodstream after the blood glucose level has already started to fall.

Bonds, farm items stolen

CHAFFEE — The Scott County Sheriff's Department said today that $700 in savings bonds and an $850 piece of farm equipment were stolen in separate thefts near town over the Memorial Day weekend.

A ditcher -- used to drain water out of fields – was stolen from where it was parked about one and a half miles west of Cape Giardeau Municipal Airport on Nash Road in extreme northern Scott County. The machine belonged to A. W. Phegley of Chaffee.

Twenty-four $25 savings bonds were reported stolen from the Route One home of James Harmon sometime over the weekend. Numerous keys were also taken.

Highlights and sidelights

Bills on ERA, jail: delays and advances

ERA VOTE DELAYED: JAIL BILL ADVANCES

JEFFERSON CITY — A group supporting the Equal Rights amendment at the State Capitol last week for what it thought would be final Senate action on this controversial legislation.

But while members of Missouri's chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW) staged a 12-hour vigil on the Capitol steps, the Senate postponed its vote once again.

The amendment is reported to be two votes short of the 18 necessary for passage, and Senate sources indicated that ERA supporters in the Senate stalled a final vote until this week in hopes of gaining passage.

Dressed in mourning robes and chains, the women demonstrated against the legislature's failure to pass ERA. But the protest may have done more harm than good.

Sens. Larry Marshall (R-Columbia) and Jack Gant (D-Independence) approached the women after the Senate recessed for lunch an asked them to stop the demonstration. They told the group that they were having an "adverse effect on proponents and opponents" of te bill.

After some additional urging from a NOW national lobbyist, the women gave up the vigil and left.

After all this was taking place, the House was giving final approval to a minimum jail standards bill which would require jails to meet health, santiary, fire safety and prisoner safety standards.

The bill now goes to the Senate criminal justice committee. Sen. Ike Skelton (D-Lexington), chairman of the committee, is supporting a similar bill in the Senate. But since the House bill is farther along thatn Skelton's, it is expected to stand a better chance for passage.

The Senate approved a bill that would change the campaign finance law passed by Missouri voters last fall.

During heated floor debate, Sen. Donald J. Gralike (D-St. Louis) said the proposal creates a "loophole big enough to drive a legal truck through". He called it a bill "for the rich and super rich".

The bill's sponsor. Sen. John D. Schneider (D-St. Louis), admitted that while the bill was "not perfect", it did protect candidates like doctors and lawyers who, under the present law, would have to reveal the names of their patients and clients.

The $36 million emergency appropriations bill appeared to be on its way to the Governor's desk before a dispute broke out over an appropriation for the purchase of the former Marillac College campus in St. Louis.

After the Senate approved the bill on May 15, Sen. Robert Young (D-St.Ann) discovered a change in its wording that stipulated that the purchase of the Marillac College campus must be linked to the establishment of an optometry school on the site.

Senators in the House- Senate conference committee which had passed the bill insist the bill they signed had the two items separated. The Senate, fearing Gov. Bond's reported intentions of veoting the school, sought to keep the school separate from the land purchase.

After Young's discovery of the change, the Senate reconsidered the bill on May 19 and rejected it. The next day Russell, after a meeting with the House leadership, recommended to the House that the bill be taken up in another House- Senate Committee.

But the committee has not been able to reach a compromise since that time. Russell wants the bill to read the way he changed it. The Senate refuses to accept the change.

Observers feel Russell is flexing his political muscles by standing firm on aposition that has become unpopular with several members in both the House and Senate. As a result, the bill may be hopelessly deadlocked in committee, and in danger of failing to reach the Senate before the June 8 deadline on appropriations action.

Sen. Skelton is expected to make another attempt to open debate on a bill restoring the death penalty in Missouri.

Skelton tried several times on Thursday to be recognized. But Lt. Gov. William Phelps, the Senate president, refused to recognize him.

Senate observers feel certain that this was a concentrated effort by the leadership to keep the bill from debate until more Senators were present.

Parma--Funeral services for Mrs. Mandy Jane Gregory Warren, 92, a resident of this area most of her life, were held this afternoon.

The baby son of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Baker, Sikeston, born May 16 at the Delta Community Hospital, came into the world as an unusual child in that within three days after birth he grew his first tooth. This, according to the attending physician, is quite a rarity.

Eleven lettermen, four provisional and two letters to team managers were announced today by Wendell Hubbs, coach of the high school baseball team. Bob Lohr, Don Keller, Glenn Matthews and Bob Dyer all received their third letter, Larry Bennett and Tom Nelson were awarded their second and initial letter went to Wallace Bobo, Ron Carmody, Jerome Hulehan, Bob Jines and Marshall Moore.

A bad golf shot took Charles D. Matthews, University of Missouri student and son of Mrs. C. D. Matthews III, of JSikeston, to a point near the south airport lake, Columbia, Tuesday, where he could see men struggling in the lake after their boat had capsized. Matthews went in and brought Paul Kovar safely to shore and then went back to help Jim Jenkins, another university student who had been with Matthews and, with him, had gone into the lake on the rescue effort, to try and recover the body of the second man, Harrison "Sugar" Buckner.

Loren G. Evans, 37, a former Canalou resident, died unexpectedly today at his St. Louis home.

What's the law?

The case of the bankrupt policeman

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Officer O'Reilly was great at catching criminals. He had less success, however, in shaking creditors. In fact, between his mortgage payments and the high cost of living, he couldn't have been more in the red had he been Karl Marx himself.

The remedy? Officer O'Reilly finally went into bankruptcy and wiped out his debts. Unfortunately, when the police commissioner heard about it, he wiped O'Reilly's job. He fired O'Reilly for violating a police department regulation that prohibited policemen from going into bankruptcy.

Attacking the legality of the regulation, the busted cop took the matter to court where he demanded that he be put back on the beat.

"Since policemen aren't exempted from inflation and the high cost of existing," he argued, "they can't be exempted from the bankruptcy laws either. And, that's the effect of the regulation."

"If policemen know that they can't go into bankruptcy," responded the police commissioner, "they're not as likely to incur heavy debts and be less vulnerable to bribes. Furthermore, it's damaging to an officer's image to go into bankruptcy. Image is essential to law enforcement. Consequently, the regulation is perfectly reasonable, necessary and legal."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you put the busted cop back on the beat by declaring the anti-bankruptcy regulation invalid?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a primary purpose of the bankruptcy act is to give debtors a new opportunity in life, unhampered by the pressures and discouragement of preexisting debts. Policemen, concluded the judge in effect, are entitled to this new opportunity in life like anyone else.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, May 28, the 148th day of 1975. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, in World War II, British and French troops began an evacuation from Dunkerque, France.

On this date —

In 1863, the first Black regiment from the North in the Civil War left Boston for the front under Col. Robert Shaw.

In 1864, Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian of Austria-Hungary landed in Vera Cruz, Mexico to become emperor.

In 1934, Mrs. Oliva Dionne gave birth to quintuplets in a farmhouse near Callender, Ont.

In 1937, British Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin resigned and was succeeded by Neville Chamberlian.

In 1940, King Leopold III of Belgium surrendered his army to German invaders in World War II.

In 1959, two monkeys named Able and Baker survived a 300-mile trip into space after being launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla. in the nose of a rocket.

Ten years ago: The Organization of American States, attempting to restore order in the Dominican Republic, took over the Dominican Central Bank to prevent irresponsible use of its funds by the government.

Five years ago: The U.S. Army charged two infantry officers in South Vietnam with attempted murder of several Vietnamese in the Mekong Delta.

One year ago: The coalition government in Northern Ireland collapsed as the economy was crippled by strikes by extremist Protestant groups.

Today's birthdays: Retired President Warren Giles of the National Baseball League is 79. Biologist Barry Commoner is 58.

Thought for today: Keep your mouth shut, your eyes open. — Japanese proverb.
